Announcement of Resumption of Negotiations For Russian Loan Comes From Paris.

JAPS ARE IN HOT PURSUIT OF ENEMY

Follow Close on Heels of Fleeing Army And Big Battle is Expected at Surgari River.

[By Cable to The Age]

St. Petersburg, March 25.—The situation in Manchuria is once more threatening, and it is probable that news of another battle will be received within a few days. It is reported that the czar has directed General Linévitch to make a stand at the Sungari river and to fight there to the last. As the Japanese are known to be close on the heels of the Russians this probably means that the two armies will soon be joined in battle.

The position along the Sungari river offers excellent advantages for making a stand. The natural defenses give the Russians an advantage. The fact that the river has few fords will hamper Japanese flanking movements.

Interior Minister Bonligan's promise to the Moscow Douma representatives, headed by Prince Galitzin, that representatives of the people will be allowed to participate in the deliberations of the commission which is to frame the new governmental assembly contemplated by the imperial rescript of March 3, will be received with satisfaction by moderate Liberals, and, taken in connection with the announced concessions to Finland and Poland, indicates the government's intention to give heed to moderate demands. It is noticeable that M. Boulignan has left the manner of the selection of the popular representatives on the commission in the air, giving the government the opportunity to yield the point of election instead of selection if the pressure should be too strong.

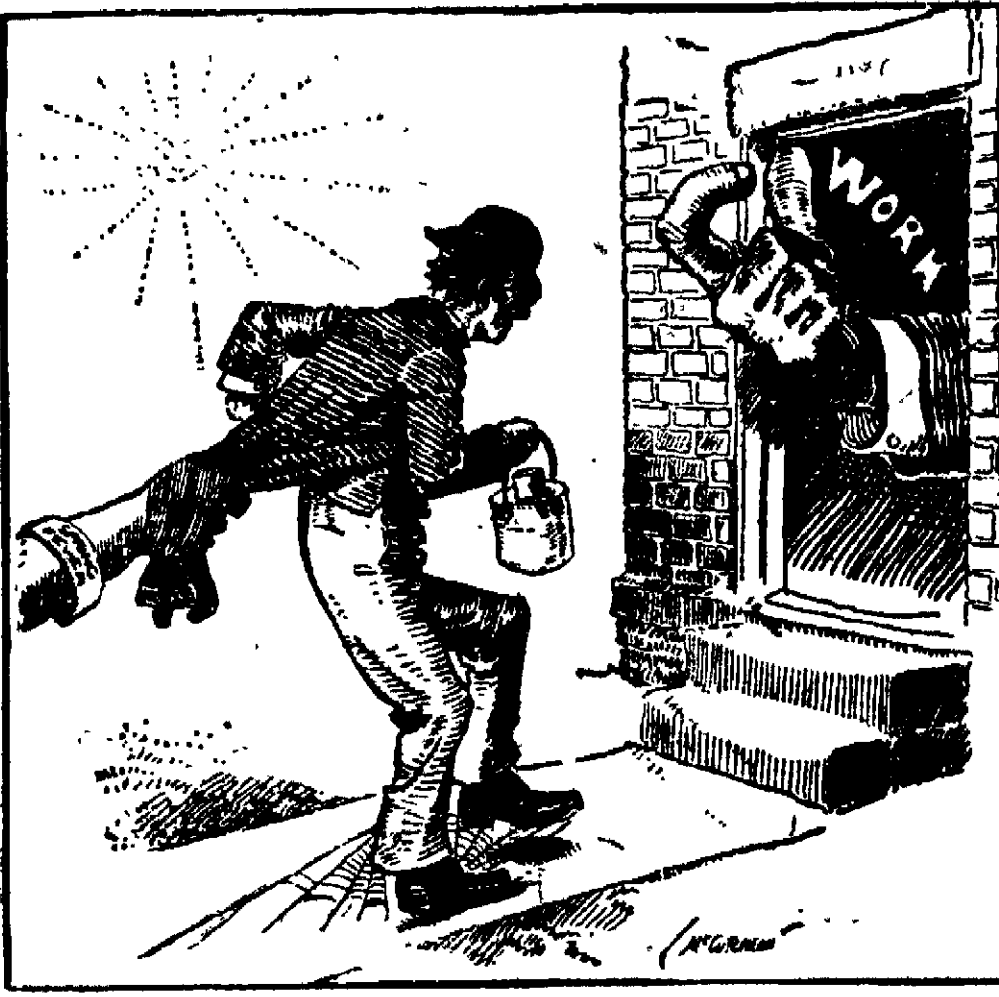

Fatigue Evident in Army.

Gunshu Pass, March 25.—The Russian retreat has now reached the village of Sipinghai, 74 miles north of the pass, where it has temporarily halted. The army has been practically without rest for months and it is natural that fatigue should be evident. The Japanese are reported to be advancing on Sipinghai positions along the railway and on both flanks. A brisk action occurred on the evening of March 18 at Kaiyuan, the Russian rear guard beating off two heavy attacks, which lasted until midnight.

After blowing up railway bridges north of Kaiyuan at five places the Russian retreat was continued March 19, 20 and 21 with only light rifle firing. The Mukden branch of the Russo-Chinese bank removed all its money except $150,000.

Paris, March 25.—The prospects of peace between Russia and Japan assumed a more definite and almost tangible aspect as the result of the announcement of the resumption of negotiations for a Russian loan. The postponement of the loan occurred through the stand taken by the financial element against proceeding while the uncertainties of war continued, whilst a willingness to resume negotiations construed as meaning that their strong influence finally has prevailed with the authorities at St. Petersburg. The announcement of the resumption of negotiations took definite form in a communication to the syndicate of agents de change, who form an influential element on the bourse, holding government preferences. The effect of the first announcement was to stimulate the market and particularly Russian securities. A reaction occurred on fears as to the effect the heavy demands of the loan would have on the market and doubts

THAD TROY WOULD START A BALL TEAM HERE

Writes Interesting Letter to "Beany" Prince Regarding Baseball Prospects in Coshocton.

C. F. Prince received the following letter from Thad Troy Friday which is self-explanatory. In case Troy should come here Mr. Prince would do all he could to assist him in setting a team organized.

Wheeling, W. Va., Mar. 23, 1905

Friend Charles—

I received a letter from "Robbie" stating that the M. Vernon team had gone up in smoke and also stating that you thought that "things looked good in Coshocton for a team." I think myself that it would be a "go" this year, as Canton and Massillon will both have good teams this year. You look the situation over and let me know what you think of it and if the people really want a team, I will come over and deliver "the goods." We are having our annual flood at present. The river started to fall last night, not so bad as last year only 42 feet 7 inches this time but that was plenty, thank you. Tell "Robbie" that I am so excited over the flood that I can not write to him before Sunday. Hoping to receive good news from you soon, I am as ever

Your friend,

"Thad."

RUSSIA FACES RUIN

[By Cable to The Age]

London, March 25.—Russia must make the best peace terms with Japan that she can or rush to financial and political ruin. This is the ultimatum of the French financiers, who have been the agents thus far that have enabled the czar to carry on the war. The czar will agree to peace terms the mikado may impose except to pay a large indemnity. This is the situation as outlined in high quarters in St. Petersburg and wired here.

COMIC OPERA PRIMA DONNA BADLY BURNED

[By Telegraph to The Age.]

Syracuse, March 25.—Miss Ethel Tillson, prima donna of a light opera company playing here, was badly burned in her dressing room at the Bastable theater and removed to a hospital. Miss Tillson was making a change of costume when a flimsy picture hat which she wore caught fire from a gas jet. In attempting to tear the blazing hat from her head her dress also caught and the upper part of her body was enveloped in flames. Screaming with pain and fright she rushed from the dressing room and down a flight of stairs onto the stage, which was being set for the second act.

Manager Hurtig rushed to her assistance, pulled off his coat and, wrapping it about her, put the fire out. Although the curtain was lowered at the time, the audience heard the woman's screams and became uneasy. The orchestra struck up and the ushers soon quieted the people and none left the house, although two women fainted.

Miss Tillson joined the company three weeks ago in Toledo. Her injuries are not dangerous.

CASTRO TO BE IGNORED BY ROOSEVELT

Venezuela's Refusal to Arbitrate Not Considered Serious.

[By Telegraph to The Age.]

Washington, March 25.—Minister Bowen's telegram to the state department informing the administration that President Castro of Venezuela had refused explicitly to submit to arbitration the pending issues between the United States and Venezuela and declaring that the asphalt cases must be adjudicated by the Venezuelan courts formed the principal topic of discussion at the meeting of the cabinet. That the situation is not regarded as acute at this time was indicated clearly by the determination of the president and his advisers to pay no present heed to President Castro's refusal to arbitrate the existing differences. It is the indicated intention of the president and Secretary Taft, who, in the absence of Secretary Hay, is being relied upon for advice in matters pertaining to foreign affairs, simply to await further developments in Venezuela. It is not believed that the situation now is of such a character as to warrant alarm. Indeed, the president is proceeding with the arrangements for his southwestern trip without reference to the Venezuelan embroglio.

New York, March 25.—The Tribune today says: "In answer to a request for a statement on the present Venezuelan troubles, the Tribune last night received the following cable dispatch from President Castro:

"Received your cable. I do not believe there will be any trouble, and if there should be any, Venezuela would win, because she never drifts away from right, reason and justice, which are the strength of weak nations."

"CIPRIANO CASTRO."

Entire Baltic Fleet Trapped

[By Cable to The Age]

London, March 25.—Advices from St. Petersburg indicate that Vice Admiral Rojestvensky and the entire Baltic sea fleet has been trapped by the Japanese in the Indian ocean between Chagos Islands and Ceylon. Admiral Togo's ships encircle the Russians so completely that escape is impossible.

The naval minister and the czar are hourly awaiting details of the reported disabling of the ships Sissoi Veliky and Navarin. The Paris Matin's despatch that Togo's torpedo boats succeeded in damaging two of Rojestvensky's vessels has caused great apprehension in official circles.

Miners And Operators Are Agreed On Year's Scale

At the joint meeting of the miners and operators held at Central Labor hall Friday evening the scale of wages to prevail at the Coshocton mines during the coming year was agreed upon.

The scale is exactly the same as that which has been in effect during the past year.

The following operators were present at the meeting which was called at seven o'clock:

Thomas Williams
John Ingham
James Lear
Edward Hudson
Charles Green

Elisha Wells from Robson mine.
Jacob Gross, from Lear mine.
Harvey Wells, from Williams mine.
William Wilden from Ingham mine.

The representative of the Hudson mine, William Hartsock, was not present.

The meeting only lasted about a half hour, President William Green having charge of the meeting. Everything was soon settled to the satisfaction of all and the scale adopted will take effect April 1. The price per car remains the same, thirty-eight cents.

The remainder of the scale is as follows:

For trackhelpers and other day laborers, $2.23.
For entry driving, $1.99 per yard.
For driving entries under top, $1.47 1-2.
For break-throughs between entries for coal $1.47 1-2 per yard.
For roof break-throughs, single entry system, for first break-through per yard, $1.47 1-2. After first yard, eighty-five cents.
For roof break-through, double entry system, per yard, eighty-five cents.
For room turning per yard of rock, 74.25 cents.
For rock shot in room rock per double yard, $1.57 1-2.
For work with steam per yard,

Another Novelty Factory Wants to Come Here

Another novelty company for Coshocton!

A lease has been all but closed upon the old Catholic church building, on North Third street, for the eleventh—or is it the even dozen—novelty plant.

The building is still under lease to the Premium Mfg. Co. who formerly occupied it. Until the Glove company moved into its new building on South Fifth, they occupied it, and their sub-lease expires April 1.

The Premium company has now arranged to lease the building to a firm from Pennsylvania—a going concern that makes advertising novelties of some kind and that is anxious to come to the fountain head of such production.

When seen by an Age man President Weisner of the Premium stated that he could give forth nothing for publication as the matter had not been closed but that the facts were as stated. He expects the head of the concern here in a few days to close matters.

Kept Their Marriage a Secret For More Than Four Weeks

The announcement of the marriage of Miss Maude Davis of Otsego and Mr. Charles M. Mast, of Zanesville, which occurred on Sunday, February 19, at Covington, Ky., was made Saturday much to the surprise of their numerous friends throughout Coshocton and Muskingum counties. Mr. and Mrs. Mast were in Coshocton Friday morning but even at this late date their marriage remained a strict secret. The following announcement cards have been sent:

M. and Mrs. T. H. Davis announce the marriage of their daughter Lulu Maude to Mr. Charles Marlon Mast Sunday the nineteenth of February, nineteen hundred and five Covington, Kentucky.

Just previous to their marriage Miss Davis accompanied by her mother came to Coshocton and they visited with her brother, Dr. W. R. Davis, of this city. Miss Davis suddenly left for Columbus but her relatives supposed she was visiting in Zanesville. Meanwhile the happy couple had gone to Covington and the capital last was that, before returning home the bride did not divulge the secret until a short time ago when she informed her mother and brother.

Mrs. Mast has been postmaster at Otsego and is a very charming young lady. Mr. Mast is a traveling salesman for Baker Brothers, of Zanesville and is in Coshocton almost every week. Both have many friends in this city who are delighted to hear of the happy union. They will probably make their home in Zanesville although for the time the bride will remain at home in Otsego. May that happy couple be one long and happy pair in the future.

General Strike Likely In Zanesville This Spring

Contractors And Unions Bucking Each Other And Both Sides Seem Determined---Dog Eat Dog.

There seems to be a strong likelihood of difficulty between the building contractors and the building trades unions of Zanesville over the question of wages this spring, and the prospects of a strike are strong to be pleasant.

Following the recent determination of the trades unions of that city to consolidate into one body, it is announced that the contractors have determined upon a similar step, and a meeting will be held within a day or two to consider the proposition, and also to determine as to whether the demands recently made by certain unions shall be granted.

A prominent contractor of Zanesville stated Wednesday that the demands would not be granted and further that all building operations would be suspended before the unions would be allowed to carry their point.

Under the former arrangements a contractor in erecting a building had only to reckon with each union in turn, from the stone masons to the roofers.

As it is now, if at any stage of the building process, a union—the carpenters, for example—become dissatisfied the contractor must settle with them before he can induce any other union on men to proceed with the work. Thus a building in course of erection may be stopped by the union men at any point and by leaving the building in a half finished condition for an indefinite period, force the contractor to come to terms.

COSHOCTON POTTERY CALLED THE "COMING" CONCERN

The Glass and Pottery World, of Chicago, has said some very nice things in the past about the Pope-Gosser China company of this city, but the March number of that journal, just issued, surpasses anything so far, with the following highly commendatory article:

A large dealer in a big city who buys, however, sparingly of American ware, recently said that he had picked out the Pope-Gosser China company as the coming American concern. He said that he only once

IN JAIL HIS FATHER WANTS HIM KEPT RATHER THAN PAY HIS FINE

Zanesville Youth Arrested for Jumping Trains Gets no Sympathy from the Head of the Family.

Frank Boettcher was arrested Friday afternoon by Officer Doney for train jumping, and taken before Squire Winmer. Not being able to liquidate his fine of $3.80 he was placed in the county jail, from which he was released late Saturday and sent hence.

His father, Lewis Boettcher, of Zanesville, was communicated with by phone.

"Your son is in jail with a $3.80 fine hanging over his head for jumping trains" quoth the squire.

And after a thoughtful pause the answer came back over the wire: "Let him stay in jail."

"So he was released.

A Coffee Calculation.

A variation of the old blacksmith calculation by which the progressive doubling of sums beginning with a cent for the first nail brings the price of shoeing a horse up to a stupendous sum is used by an Arch street grocer to advertise his coffee with striking effect. The grocer displays a sign reading, "If one grain of our coffee was placed on the first square of a checkerboard, two on the second, four on the third, and so on, doubling throughout the whole sixty-four squares, the total number arrived at would be 18,446,744,073,551,615 coffee beans, or 7,960,915,394,584,601 pounds of coffee. This would represent 331,704,808,107 car loads, and a freight train to carry it would be 3,957,841,400 miles in length. It would reach around the earth 158,313 times and would extend 42 times the distance between the earth and the sun. The quantity would make 13,374,337,862,902,139 gallons of coffee and would cost at 28 cents a pound $872,407,300,806,397.20. If each person in the country drank three cups daily it would take the entire population of the United States 2,442,801 years to consume it."—Philadelphia Record.

MARCH 25 IMPORTANT

March 25 is an eventful day, inasmuch as it is the date upon which two Coshocton attorneys first saw light, the twins being S. H. Nicholas and F. E. Pomerene, with something more than ten years difference in their ages.

Mr. Nicholas indignantly denies that he is ready to confer with Dr. Osler and the truth has finally been ascertained that he lacks one of the half century mark. Mr. Pomerene admits that he might be fair and fat but not forty—nay, nay, Pauline! At least three less.

They are planning a double celebration tonight.

Through Your Blood to Rheumatism.

The only way to get at Rheumatism is by the way it came.

Rheumatism and kindred diseases result from a common cause. It took the medical profession nineteen centuries to discover that the cause of this dreaded and painful disease is an excess of Uric acid!

Once Uric acid is in the system, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Sciatica follow in its wake. You must get it out of the blood to get rid of these diseases.

Athlaphoros is the only scientific remedy that cures all forms of disease resulting from an excess of Uric acid. It is the only specific that dissolves and removes the cause! The wonderful success it has had is due to the fact that it is the one medicine that cures by removing.

COSHOCTON WINNERS IN BIG MASSILLON CONTEST

Third Annual Trial of Yocum Schools Takes Place Today---Honors And Gold Medals.

Interest centers about Massillon today in Yocum Business College circles, where the third annual contest is now on.

The following from the Coshocton school are in the eligible list for the competition, having won first or second in the contest here March 10.

Miss Olive Elliott, Wellston.
Miss Lizzie Infield, Helmick.
Miss Zella Lewis, New Castle.
Miss Edith Riffey, city.
Miss Verna Leavengood, city.
Miss Beniah Darnes, city.
R. B. Marsh, Bakersville.
J. A. Wenger, city.
T. E. Gosser, Plainfield.

The following letter to The Age from General Manager Yocum gives an interesting explanation of the contest:

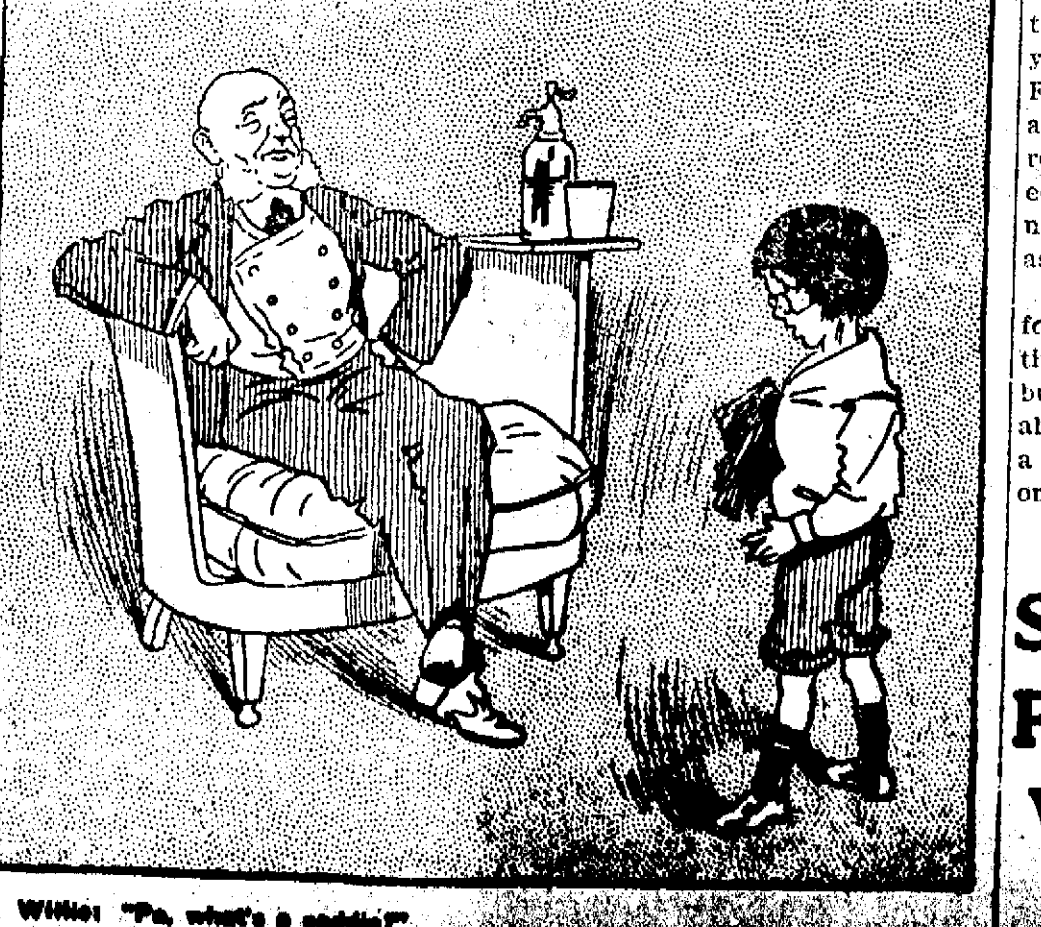

The third annual general prize contest in which only students who won silver medals or second place in the local contests held March 10 are allowed to compete, will take place in the several departments of the Massillon Actual Business College on Saturday, Mar. 25. The entire day will be given to the event.

Gold medals as first prizes and second prizes of value will be awarded in eight different contests, including all the business branches—Shorthand, Typewriting, Book-keeping, Rapid Calculation, Spelling, Penmanship, etc.

We will be able to announce the names of the winners of these medals by long distance U. S. or Bell Telephone between 6:30 and 8:30 Saturday evening.

Between fifty and sixty contestants will be present from our schools located at Massillon, Wooster, Mansfield, Findlay, New Philadelphia, Uhrichsville and Coshocton. Considerable interest was shown by the press in our local contest and the coming event has aroused a good deal of interest in educational circles

"York State Folks" Prettilest Play of A

STERLING IS THE COMPANY

Indications Point To Immense Crowd at Famous Pastoral Play Thursday Night --News of The Foot-Lights.

The Best Yet.

There is no doubt that the coming attraction, York State Folks, is by all odds the best play of the entire season at the local play house. It is a good whole-hearted story, beautifully told and splendidly staged. A feature of the production will be a choir of boy's voices. Several local lads have been engaged to assist in the singing.

Madame Johanna Galski, who is to accompany the Pittsburgh orchestra under the direction of London G. Charlton, has scored a long series of triumphs in her concert tour of the west. Return engagements have been played in almost every city she has visited, and her reception throughout the cordial and appreciative west has been a reminder of the old enthusiastic days when the great prime donne were worshipped almost as divinities. In San Francisco they did not quite drag her carriage through the streets, but thousands did crowd around it in a pouring rain and escort it to the hotel, after her first return concert.

York State Folks.

These are the nice things that the Cincinnati Enquirer said the other day about "York State Folks" that comes to the Sixth Street theatre next Thursday evening:

This idyllic little pastoral of everyday life in one of the up-state villages of New York comes back to the local boards for a week in the same splendid shape that it has been presented here before. There is little to tell of it from the professional play-goer's point of view, save that it retains all of its finely drawn humor, its interesting characters and its well conceived and cleverly worked plot.

Scenes from "York State Folks," to be Presented at Sixth Street Theatre next Thursday Evening, March 30.

his keen observation of rural types when we formed an acquaintance with him in vaudeville. His ambitious effort has outlived the author, but it keeps his name and the memory of his easy, natural style fresh with each new presentation. It is simplicity and unforced situations that this play is truly an American creation which redounds to the credit of its author and producers.

The company this season is very much the same as when the play was first produced. The contrasting types of the village, Pooch-Bah Simon Peter and the lovable old organ maker Myron Cooper, are still in the safe keeping of James Lackaye and Ray L. Royce. Widely different in their complexion as these roles are, both present fine opportunities for artistic characterization, and a complete consummation of the author's desires are reflected in the present portrayals. The Simon Peter of James Lackaye is one of the best can claim. It is an extremely difficult part and one which has a tendency to be negative, but by sheer force of his comprehensive portrayal Mr. Lackaye makes it a study so engrossing that what had been mapped out originally as the villain role becomes the center of interest, and once again in this pretty little play you see the negative characterization applauded more enthusiastically than any other one in the piece.

Mr. Royce's portrayal is equally as comprehensive, however, in its dulcet way, and one sort of feels better for having met his embodiment of this kindly mentioned old fellow.

Another particularly well handled bit is the Lem Dunbar of Harry Crosby, a rough country type most faithfully represented. The entire cast is an exceptionally well balanced one, and to meet them is to be deeply interested in their depiction of the little world that embraces this pretty story. The production is all that could be asked.

A revival of "The County Fair," with Nell Burgess in his old role, is one of the features of the spring season.

scheduled for production next year. Mr. Mitchell wrote "Becky Sharp" for Mrs. Fiske.

One of the brightest little singing soubrettes of the season is Miss Clark, who is appearing as Matayas with De Wolf Hopper in his successful revival of "Wang."

Clyde Fitch has turned his energies in a new direction. He is to make the book of an opera out of one of his plays for Emma Eames, and Signor Puccini is to write the score.

Cecilia Loftus, having finished her regular engagement, is to go into vaudeville under a contract which provides for her appearing twice a day at two houses. But for this work she receives over $3000 for a week.

Frederick Lewis has made a great hit in New York as Rubek in Maurice Campbell's production of "When We Dead Awake" at the Knickerbocker Theater. Next year Mr. Lewis will be seen in George C. Hazelton's play founded on the life of Edgar Allan Poe called "The Raven."

Augustus Thomas has finished the scenario of the new play he is writing for Lawrence D'Orsay and completed the first act. The scenes of the play are laid in Washington, and the character taken by Mr. D'Orsay is that of a member of the British Legation. This will be the last season of "The Earl of Pawtucket."

The Real Widow Brown.

The return engagement of "The Real Widow Brown" pleased a good sized audience at the Sixth Street theatre Friday evening. While not a remarkable performance in any way its fun making incidents are numerous and collectively seemed to "catch on" with the audience remarkably well.

The hit of the evening was made by Willie Dunlap who played the part of Charles Ward and masqueraded as the widow. His make up was great and his character songs in the second act were enthusiastically received.

The dancing of Misses Daly, Hayman and Raymond was very good the singing was about the average and as a dispeller of blues the performance was a great success.

Warmer

Ohio—Fair and warmer Saturday; Sunday fair, followed by showers in the afternoon or at night; increasing southwest to south winds.

WAR AND COMMERCE.

The national war bill has to be paid in the end by the party who wages war. The new plan of demanding an indemnity of the losing party in the struggle may somewhat modify the severity of the losses, but the optimistic Japanese are not willing to admit that war in its visible aspects is doing them any great harm. As far as injuring their exports is concerned they contend that the Russo-Japanese conflict has had the effect to increase their commerce and to swell their exports. Official figures show that Japan's total exports for last September exceeded 31,000,000 yen, as compared with 28,000,000 yen during the same month of 1933. During that same month her imports totaled 31,000,000 yen, as compared with 20,000,000 yen the previous September. The total exports and imports were 62,000,000 as compared with 48,000,000 the preceding September. Japan is thus able to figure that the war has been a benefit to her commerce as such and that her industries, as shown by the increased exports, have not suffered, but rather gained under the war. War stimulates economy and encourages men to work at useful pursuits. It quickens the national energies. It makes the surface of things look animated. But nations do not make money by going to war; not even Germany, who forced France to pay such enormous indemnities. The accrued national debt will drag just as heavily by and by.

A CREAMY FOOD

Scott's Emulsion is cod liver oil prepared as a food—not a food like bread or meat, but more like cream; in fact, it is the cream of cod liver oil. At the same time it is a blood-maker, a nerve tonic and a flesh-builder. But principally it is food for tired and weak digestions, for all who are fat-starved and thin. It is pleasant to take; children like it and ask for more.

We'll send you a sample, free. SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl Street, New York.

WAR

concerning the uses to which the loan will be put. However, it seems to be the accepted view of financiers that the proceeds of the loan will not be applied to the further continuance of the war.

Takes Steps Toward Peace.

Coupled with the announcement of resumption of the loan negotiation came a strong intimation from official and diplomatic quarters that steps looking toward peace had been definitely taken by Russia. The foreign office declined to confirm a report that France was likely to be the intermediary, but diplomats who are actively interested for the first time gave credit to the statement that Russia had decided to seek peace. It was said in these quarters that Russia would deal directly with Tokio through the French minister, who has charge of Russia's interests there. However, the report of France's active part in the negotiations were said to be not entirely correct, as other powers have contributed towards a pacific solution and it is expected they will take part in its realization. It appears that some of the lesser powers, including Sweden, are assisting to that end.

Washington, March 25.—While keenly interested in the interpretation placed by Paris on the significance of the resumption of the negotiations of the Russian loan, European diplomats who were seen confessed that they at first were inclined to regard this step as a further confirmation of official news which has reached here within the last 24 hours that the emperor is resolutely determined to continue the war for the present. If Paris financiers, as reported, have declined to take up the loan save on condition that the proceeds shall not go toward the war fund, official Washington, with the exception of the Russian embassy, believes that this important fact marks the beginning of peace negotiations. The several European ambassadors directly interested are anxiously awaiting news from their foreign offices on this point.

Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, expressed the belief that no such inference could be drawn from the reopening of the negotiations as that it meant peace was in sight. He learned several days ago that the loan would be successfully floated, and while he is aware of the desire among some French financiers that the war come to an early ending he scouts the idea that such a condition has been attached to the loan.

The majority of diplomats here who are in a position to follow the inside workings of the European chancelleries believe that peace is now possible. As one diplomat expressed it: "If the matter can be approached in a way that will not too seriously embarrass Russia I have reason to believe that peace proposals will receive serious consideration at St. Petersburg."

Details Completed for Japanese Loan.
London, March 25.—The final details of the Japanese loan were concluded here with the exception of the date of issue. This has not yet been decided, but it will not be delayed. The amount is $150,000,000 with interest at 4½ per cent. The price of issue is 90 and the security will be the net receipts of the tobacco monopoly of Japan, amounting to $16,000,000, according to the budget for the next fiscal year.

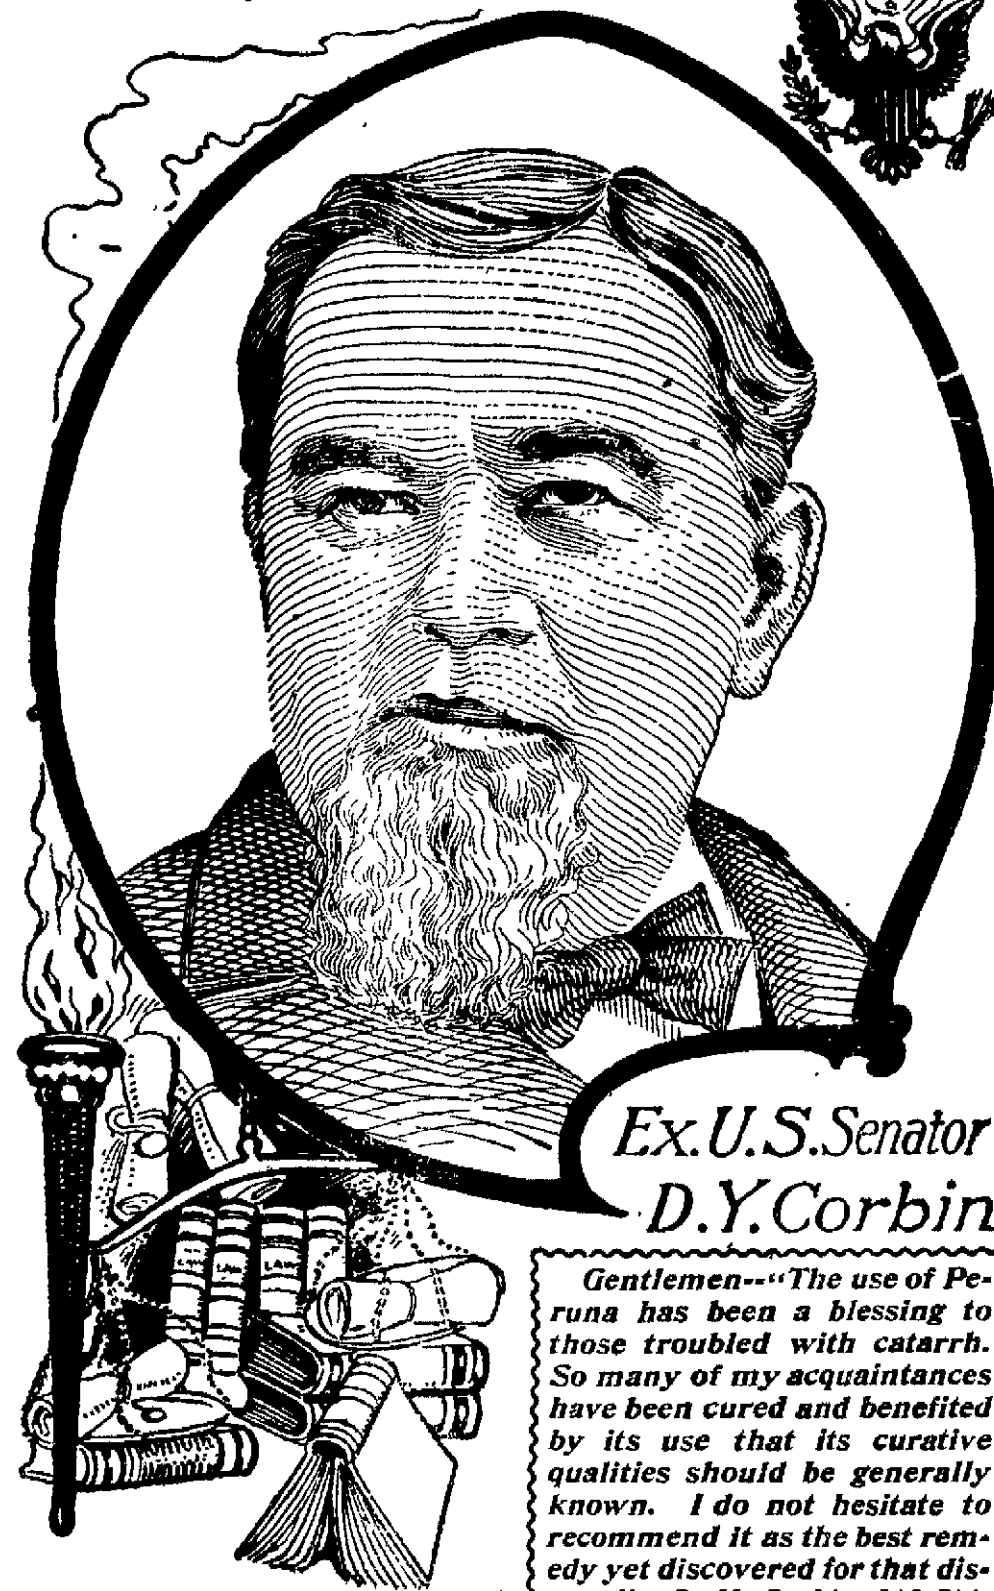

Warsaw, March 25.—The strikes in the coal and iron districts of Sosnowice and Dombrowa have ended at last, the workmen having resumed their labors. The peasant agitation continues, but on a sporadic movement controlled by Socialist agitators, who have been unable thus far to impress the peasants with their view of the necessity of a strike. M. Maximovitch, the new governor general, has withdrawn the patrol's from the schools, being of the opinion that it is undignified to employ soldiers to watch school boys.

"My Life Hung by a Mere Thread, Pe-ru-na Cured Me."

Mrs. Sarah Smart, 278 Hayward St., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"I can't tell in words how low I was. My life hung by a mere thread. I was waiting for months to die.

"My trouble was consumption or bronchitis. I suffered no pain when I was low, but coughing and breathing kept sapping what little strength I had. I could not eat, sleep or even lean back on a chair. I was a mere skeleton. I said to my husband, 'I can't last much longer.' My neighbors say they do not know how I ever recovered. It was almost a miracle.

"I took your medicine but three months, when I could do my housework and washing, and have been doing it ever since. Now I am able to do anything. You would never think I had been troubled with such a serious illness. I shall always keep your medicine in my house."—Mrs. Sarah Smart.

Despaired of Recovery.

Mrs. R. L. Antich, Vice President American Genealogical Association, 604 H street, N. W., Washington, D. C., writes:

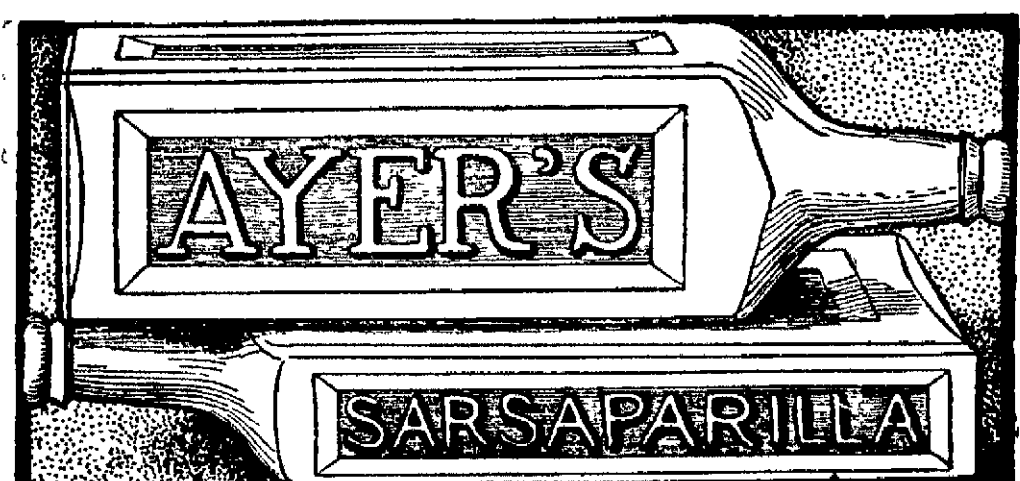

"I know whereof I speak when I say that Pe-ru-na is a wonderful remedy for colds and catarrhal trouble. Last fall I was very much debilitated from the effect of a cold contracted early in the summer and which I neglected. I knew that my system was in need of medicine and rest, but to find the right thing was the problem. Happily I gave Pe-ru-na a trial first and have no reason to complain of the results. Within a month I had entirely recovered my strength and good health and really felt better and stronger than before."—Mrs. R. L. Antich.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Pe-ru-na, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

MASONS WILL HAVE A NEW READING ROOM

A reading room is the latest innovation at the Masonic lodge rooms. The members will be enabled to spend their leisure hours reading the modern periodicals and the room will be accessible at all hours. Each member of the order is to be furnished with a key to the reading room and it will be opened up just as soon as the magazines and papers arrive.

There are no less than fourteen remedies in this standard family medicine. Among them we might mention sarsaparilla root, yellow dock root, stillingia root, buckthorn bark, senna leaves, burdock root, cimicifuga root, cinchona bark, phytolacca root. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is certainly a medicine, a genuine medicine, a doctor's medicine.

Presence of Mind.

The following is a true story of an incident that happened in an English village:

A husband had gone out for the evening and left his wife and child at home. The woman was about to retire for the night when, to her amazement, she perceived the foot of a man beneath the bed. Instead of calling for assistance, as some would have done, she coolly went to the child's cot and sat and sang till the child went to sleep. Two hours then remained before her husband came in. He was surprised to find her waiting up, but when his wife handed him an envelope, saying, "You might run and post this," the cause of her waiting was revealed. Instead of a letter the following was written on the envelope: "A burglar is under our bed. Run; fetch police." The husband returned in a minute with a policeman, and the man was arrested. The burglar when brought up before the magistrate remarked that he had come across a few brave women in his time, but this one must have had a nerve like iron, for she sat there for three solid hours. He had the impression that she didn't know he was there till the policeman pulled him out.

The Time to Charge.

At the taking of Moscow while the troops sat in their saddles under a murderous fire Murat, Napoleon's dashing chief of cavalry, received a dispatch to which an answer was required. Though his mettlesome horse was trembling, Murat laid the reins upon the horn of the saddle, took his notebook in one hand and a pencil in the other and began to write a response. Suddenly a shell fell and exploded on the ground close by. The horse leaped into the air and swung wildly around. Murat simply transferred the pencil to the hand that held the notebook, calmed the horse with the other hand and then went on writing his dispatch as if nothing had happened. A shout of admiration went up along the line. Murat saw that the entire unit was aroused by his trifling act and created a favorable moment for a charge. He gave the order, and his men swept clear through the enemy's line.

COQUELIN'S REPLY.

How the French Actor Got Into the Sub Rosa Club.

One of the most famous of the Quarter Latin clubs in Paris is the one which is called the Sub Rosa.

The elder Coquelin, the great actor, was present one night at the club's weekly feast and applied for membership. Now, the only rules of the Sub Rosa men are: "Think much. Write little. Be as silent as you can." The presiding officer, with this last rule in mind, answered the applicant by placing before him a tumbler filled so full of water that another drop would have caused it to run over. Coquelin understood. The club membership was obviously full.

Over the table was suspended a rose, the club emblem. While the glass still stood before him Coquelin broke a petal from the flower and laid it so gently on the water that not a single drop escaped. A silent man could join and make no trouble.

Around the table ran a ripple of smiles and little hand claps and nods of approval, and then, as if of one accord, all began making bread balls. Then a cup was passed from hand to hand and each deposited his "ballot" in it and all were found to be round. Not one had been pressed flat in sign of disapproval. So Coquelin joined the Sub Rosa club.—Warwick James Price in Success.

His Cottage His Castle.

The right of every Englishman to consider his cottage as his castle was never but once questioned, and that was by a London magistrate who was presiding in an action for trespass. "My client," said the barrister in making his plea, "is a poor man—he lives in a hovel, and this miserable dwelling is in a forlorn and dilapidated state—but still, thank God, the laborer's cottage, however ruinous its plight, is still his sanctuary and his castle. Yes, the winds may enter it, and the rains may enter it, but the king cannot enter it."

"What! Not the reigning king?" asked the joke loving judge.

ICE

The water from which Coshocton manufactures ice is pumped from a well sixty three feet deep into boilers where it is converted into a steam which passes into condensers, is condensed into water then passes to the skimmer tank and is skimmed. It is then forced to the reboiler and boiled, and from this point it flows through two large charcoal filters from which it passes to the cooling tank and is then distilled water. From there it goes into the ice cans and is frozen at a temperature of from 12 to 14 degrees above zero. But you say is this process better than that through which the canal water of which our natural ice is made passes. It would not be fair or just for me to say, but through what kind of filter the water from Cleveland to Portsmouth passes I will leave you to guess.

HANDLED MOTORMAN ROUGH.

Men Attempts to Lynch Man for Running Down Small Boy.

New York, March 25.—A squad of extra police was summoned from a station in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn to rescue a policeman and the motorman of a surface car from an angry mob of 2,000 persons who were trying to punish the motorman for the death of a little boy. The child, Frederick Von Gilder, age 4 years, ran in front of the car as it was passing through Park avenue and was struck and instantly killed. Several women in the street and car fainted when they witnessed the accident. Hardly had the motorman, James McCauley, left the platform of the car than several men seized him with cries of "lynch him." "Throw him down and jump on him." McCauley struggled back to the car and reached a switch iron, with which he knocked down several of his assailants.

A policeman came to his rescue, but the mob attacked him also and the two men fought side by side, the policeman using his club and McCauley the switch iron. Word was sent to a nearby police station for help and when the police arrived they had to beat their way through the crowd to reach the two men. The body of the boy was then removed from under the car. When his mother, Mrs. Robert Von Gilder, saw the body she fainted as she started downstairs and fell headlong, suffering injuries from which it was feared she might not recover.

HYPNOTIZED EACH OTHER.

Mother and Daughter Under Spell That Could Not Be Broken.

New York, March 25.—Death ended the strange sleep of one of two patients, mother and daughter, at the Presbyterian hospital. It was the younger woman, Miss Luella Huestis, 23 years old, who passed away. Her mother, Mrs. James Huestis, whose age is 63, is not expected to live 48 hours. For 14 days the cases have puzzled physicians.

Dr. Quackenbush of Columbia university believes the women were in a stupor through hypnotic influence. He doubts if they could have been brought to consciousness except through an outside agency. Other physicians have suggested that the condition of the two women was caused by mutual hypnotism, and that the spell could have been broken only by either of the subjects.

The women, who lived in White Plains, were found unconscious in bed the morning of March 10 last. All the usual remedies had no effect upon either. Miss Huestis literally died from starvation.

HEIR TO MILLIONS.

But Woman Says She's Not Entitled to the Money.

Bucyrus, O., March 25.—Though notified that she is an heir to an estate easily valued at nearly $2,000,000, Mrs. Joseph Bogan of this city has replied that she isn't entitled to the property.

Some days ago Mr. Abraham McCull of Bloomington passed away. His big fortune is to be divided among the heirs. Mrs. Bogan is a cousin of McCull and has been notified that she will come in for a share of the property. Mrs. Bogan insists that Mr. McCull has brothers and sisters who will get the property. Mrs. Bogan says she will be glad to receive any of the money she may be entitled to, but she insists that there is no danger of such good fortune befalling her.

Dies from Strychnine Poisoning.

Columbus, O., March 25.—The body of Frank Fraser, about 35 years of age, who registered as Tom Brown of Cincinnati, has been found dead in bed at the Domicile, a lodging house for men in North High street. An unsigned letter, sealed and addressed to his brother, George Fraser, 29 Anne street, Lowell, Mass., and dated Norwood, O., March 22, is as follows: "Dear Brother: I leave here today for the east. Don't send any more letters here." Death was due to strychnine poisoning. The body was sent to the morgue and the brother notified.

Caught Rifling the Mails.

Youngstown, O., March 25.—John H. Wormley, a local mail collector, was arrested by Inspectors Owens and Clark, charged with rifling letters. Wormley was caught by a decoy letter and when confronted he broke down and confessed he had been rifling letters for three years, and had taken about $1,000. A guard was placed over him in jail as it was feared he would attempt suicide.

Had a Train Kill Him.

Akron, O., March 25.—A well-dressed man about 55, at Hudson, waited until a fast passenger train on the Cleveland and Pittsburgh railroad reached him, then stepped in front of the pilot. He was dismembered. There were no letters to identify him, but he had a large sum of money in his pockets and cards of W. H. Gaffney of Cleveland, a florist.

Want Increase in Wages.

Cleveland, March 25.—The longshoremen of the Great Lakes will meet with the dock managers in this city next week in conference over the terms of employment for the coming season of navigation. The workmen will ask for an increase of 7 1/2 per cent in their wages and a reduction in working hours from 11 to 10 a day.

AGAIN IN THE COURTS

Mrs. Chadwick Makes Some Statements Anent Her Money Troubles.

DENIES SHE OWES $2,000,000

Attorney Grossman Attempts to Unravel Some of the Many Mysteries Connected With This Wonderful Woman's Transactions.

Cleveland, March 25.—In the bankruptcy court here Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick detailed some of her financial transactions in the course of an examination by Attorney Louis J. Grossman, acting for Trustee Nathan Loeser. Mrs. Chadwick said that she was not able to give as many details of these transactions as she would like to because of the absence of papers which were held in a number of cities. She had sent for the papers and expected to have them when the hearing is continued next Thursday.

Mrs. Chadwick testified that her total indebtedness would not exceed $750,000. Of this sum borrowed from various persons, she had received only $517,000, leaving $238,000 for commissions to the money lenders. She said she owed certain banks in Cleveland $200,000. The names of these institutions she was willing to give to Mr. Loeser, trustee for the creditors, privately.

Mrs. Chadwick walked from the county jail to the bankruptcy court, a distance of about one block. This is the first time Mrs. Chadwick has appeared outdoors except in a carriage since her arrest. She looked well and appeared cheerful. She expressed her willingness to tell all that she could of her financial affairs. Some of the questions that were put to her were not answered because she did not care to give a reply from memory.

The examination disclosed additional assets of $200,000. Of this amount $58,000 is due from Charles H. Stewart of Cleveland and $150,000 worth of jewelry held by Wolfers Bros., of Brussels, Belgium. Mrs. Chadwick asserted that there are other assets consisting of jewelry and valuable articles held by other persons for her.

The examination was conducted in the presence of Mrs. Chadwick's four attorneys, who at times interposed an objection to the questions of Mr. Grossman and with whom Mrs. Chadwick frequently consulted before she replied to some of the attorney's questions. Mr. Grossman's opening question was that he believed Mrs. Chadwick owed debts to the extent of $2,000,000 and of that sum but $100,000 in assets had been located. He asked Mrs. Chadwick to assist the trustee for the creditors in locating all that could be found of her property. This Mrs. Chadwick said she was willing to do, but said that important papers she had sent for would not be in her possession until next week. She said the papers were scattered around in Canton, Pittsburg, New York and other places. She said the effect of the papers would be to show where hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of property was and would also make known what sums of money she had borrowed. She denied that her indebtedness would amount to $2,000,000 or any sum near it. She said the sum of $750,000 which she admits she owed would include the bonuses paid for the loans.

DREAM COMES TRUE.

Man Saw His Barn Burn Just as it Occurred.

Upper Sandusky, O., March 25.—W. G. Hale of this city, who is traveling through Texas, dreamed that his barn burned and that two horses were incinerated. He was notified next day that the fire had occurred.

In a letter received from him he described the fire, and his description tallied exactly with the facts.

Cries When Asked to Bathe.

Akron, O., March 25.—John Porinichy, who was made insane by the loss of his savings in a bank which failed here, cries piteously when asked to take a bath, claiming that a physician had warned him that the least exertion would kill him. He was sent to New York in the custody of County Commissioner Oviatt and will be sent to his home near Budapest. He had saved his money to take a trip to the old country.

Columbus Has Big Fire.

Columbus, O., March 25.—Fire which started in a paper bin in the basement of the Columbus Drygoods company's store in North High street has practically gutted the structure and threatened the destruction of a four-story business block and a six-story apartment house adjoining. The loss is estimated at $200,000. Four firemen were slightly hurt.

Will Not Advance Rates.

Massillon, O., March 25.—The joint mining wage conference of the Massillon district adjourned without reaching an agreement, the operators refusing to grant an advance in the rates for machine mining. No change was made in the scale of wages for pick mining, which will remain in force until April, 1906.

DUN'S REVIEW OF TRADE.

Summary of Business Conditions Throughout the Country.

New York, March 25.—Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade today says: Spring trade responds to seasonal weather and shipments of merchandise have increased so rapidly that railway facilities are severely taxed. At many points there is complaint of car and motive power shortage and navigation on lakes and rivers at the north has not opened as promptly as business demands. The customary damage from floods has rendered many mills idle and several minor events added to the number of unemployed, but these temporary adverse features are more than offset by the resumption of outdoor work, especially in building operations and on the farms.

Buyers are arriving in large numbers at primary markets, warm weather accelerating preparations for Easter trade. Manufacturing activity continues, the best news of the week coming from the iron and steel industry, where new records are constantly established. Textile plants are also increasingly busy, but there is frequent complaint of small profits because of high costs of production, particularly as to raw material and labor.

Holders and makers of iron and steel products appear to have secured control of the situation. It is no longer considered desirable to delay the placing of contracts in expectation of better terms. Although boom conditions have been avoided thus far and comparatively steady quotations prevail, it is possible that in some departments of the industry urgent orders may soon go abroad. Two special features have developed during the past week, a maximum movement of iron and ore was announced and the largest single contract on record for steel billets was placed. In addition the recent record breaking output of coke was further increased.

Strength is seen in the hide market, especially for native steers of mid-winter salting, and sole leather branded hides are in limited supply. Leather is quiet, tanners holding for better prices than most manufacturers of footwear are willing to pay. Salesmen of New England footwear manufacturers who are in the west have secured liberal initial fall orders, business on the whole comparing favorably with any preceding week this year.

Give Benefit to Fellow Actor.

New York, March 25.—A benefit given at the Metropolitan opera house for Joseph Holland, the actor, who, on account of illness probably will never be able to appear again, netted $23,000. Among those who contributed their services were William Courtney, Ethel Barrymore, William Gillette, Blanche Walsh, Lew Fields and Mrs. Leslie Carter, who delivered a brief address and read a letter from Joseph Jefferson, the godfather of the beneficiary.

Mrs. Stanford Buried.

Stanford University, Cal., March 25.—The body of the late Mrs. Jane Stanford, who recently died at Honolulu, now rests in the Stanford mausoleum between the bodies of her husband and son, near the institution of learning that bears their name.

Degree of Comparison.

On public occasions Count von Moltke was frequently called upon to propose the health of the Emperor William I. At small gatherings he would confine himself to the formula, "Long live the emperor!" On more important occasions he would say, "Long life to his majesty the emperor." At large public banquets the toast culminated in the words, "Long life to his majesty the emperor, our most gracious king and master."

STUDENTS KIDNAPED.

Are Detained in Order to Prevent Them Attending Class Banquet.

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 25.—Raymond S. Williams of Lapeer, Mich., was kidnaped by sophomores of the University of Michigan to prevent his acting as toastmaster at the annual freshman banquet of the literary students. Williams had been selected as a substitute toastmaster for Edward Croul of Detroit, who was kidnaped.

After the banquet and when dancing was begun, the sophomores released Williams and Croul and escorted them to the assembly hall, together with 10 other freshmen who had been kidnaped during the evening. The freshmen were then left unmolested during the remainder of the function.

Much Mail Destroyed.

Seattle, Wash., March 25.—Many thousands of letters, all of second class mail matter and all registered mail matter was destroyed by fire and water in the Great Northern train wreck in Idaho. This mail came from St. Paul and the east and was intended for distribution in Spokane, Seattle and points in northern and north-western Washington.

Railroad Man Commits Suicide.

Indianapolis, March 25.—John W. Browning, age 65, veteran railroad man, widely known horseman and politician, committed suicide at his home by shooting a bullet through his brain. Mr. Browning had been despondent for some months. Failing health and the death of his wife a short time ago are thought to have unbalanced his mind.

More Satisfactory.

"Why don't you try to make a name that will be respected by future generations?" "My dear sir," answered Mr. Death.

NEWARK'S SCALP AGAIN DANGLING AT OUR BELT

Coshocton High School Defeats Newark Y. M. C. A. at Basket Ball by Identical Score of Last Week, 23 to 22--Girls Played Clever Curtain Raiser.

Once more the Coshocton high school colors are waving high. An exultant shout that reverberated through every nick and corner of Aleyone hall went up at the close of the basket ball game Friday evening when Charley Denman, who plays left forward for Coshocton, dropped a long field goal when the score stood twenty-one to twenty-two and ended the hard fought battle, the score being Coshocton 23, Newark Y. M. C. A. 22.

The girls showed that they are learning the game although they are not so fast nor so strong as their masculine friends. They put up a very snappy game and the spectators were thoroughly entertained. The Senior-Sophomore team triumphed over the Junior team by the score of 3 to 0.

True Greatness. First of all, it is a thing of the heart. It is all alive with robust and generous sympathies. It is neither behind its age nor too far before it. It is just up with its age and ahead of it only just so far as to be able to lead its march. It cannot slumber, for activity is a necessity of its existence. It is so and his spirit seemed to be infused into the other Coshocton players who fairly rushed the Newark players off their feet in the 1st half, the half ending with the score 13 to 17 in favor of Coshocton. In the second half Newark took a decided brace. Pine, who played such a fast game with the Newark high school here last Saturday night, took Gardner's place at right forward and worked like a whirlwind, in spite of the fact that he has a bad knee. Swihart made Four Field Goals. Deeds two and Denman two. Deeds had seven foul goals to his credit while Beecher had eight. Newark

ADMINISTRATOR'S SALE OF Real Estate.

By virtue of an order of sale issued to me by Probate Court of Coshocton county, Ohio, I shall offer for sale at public auction on the premises on, TUESDAY, APRIL 11th, 1905, at one o'clock p. m., the following described real estate situated in the county of Coshocton, state of Ohio and in Linton township and particularly described as follows: The Northwest quarter of the North-west quarter of section fourteen (14) and the North-east quarter of the North-east quarter of section fifteen (15) in township four of range five, excepting therefrom that part thereof lying South-west of the public road now owned by Charles Lahna, and excepting and reserving from said tracts the coal and mining rights granted and conveyed to Charles L. Cassingham and others by John Hiser, by deed found in Volume 93 page 608 of the Record of Deeds of said county, reference to which deed is made for a description of the property and rights thereby conveyed. Also the Southeast quarter of the South-west quarter and the South-west quarter of the South-east quarter of section seven (7), township four, range five. Said first and second described tracts being subject to the dower of Rachael Hiser assigned therein and covering and including all of said Northwest quarter of said North-west quarter of section fourteen (14) and sixteen acres off of the east side of the North-east quarter of the North-east quarter of section fifteen (15). Said third and fourth tracts are free from dower of Rachael Hiser, widow.

BOWLERS GO TO ZANESVILLE

A bowling match between Coshocton and Zanesville will be played at Zanesville this evening. The following Coshocton players went to Zanesville today: Reed, Arnold, Pfeiffer, Hildebrandt, Glazier. The Zanesville team will play a return game here on the Stag alleys two weeks from tonight. A spring tonic that makes sick people well. Drives out all impurities that collect in your system. A family tonic for the sick and afflicted. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea, 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. C. E. Anderson.

May Change Sections.

The railroad people are talking of putting in a Morgan Run section and have tried to rent the Morgan Coal Co's cottages for the section men. The object of this is to shorten up the Newcomerstown section a mile on account of the increasing work in taking care of the big yards at that point.

INCREDIBLE BRUTALITY.

It would have been incredible brutality if Chas. F. Lemberger, of Syracuse, N. Y., had not done the best he could for his suffering son. "My boy," he says, "cut a fearful gash over his eye, so I applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve, which quickly healed it and saved his eye. Good for burns and ulcers too. Only 25¢ at C. E. Anderson's drug store."

Where is Smith?

Matt Smith, of Center Valley, has left his home for parts unknown. Previous to his departure he traded horses with Wm. Shafer of this place, and received some boot. Alex. Smith's son, said he left debts and disorder in general.—West Lafayette Indicator.

STRIKES HIDDEN ROCKS.

When your ship of health strikes the hidden rocks of Consumption, Pneumonia, etc., you are lost, if you don't get help from Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. J. W. McKinnon, of Talladega Springs, Ala. writes: "I had been very ill with pneumonia under the care of two doctors, but was getting no better when I began to take Dr. King's New Discovery. The first dose gave relief, and one bottle cured me." Sure cure for sore throat, bronchitis, coughs and colds. Guaranteed at C. E. Anderson's drug store, price 50¢ and $1. Trial bottle free.

Dennison Yards Improved.

Panhandle officials have announced that new improvements costing $30,000 are soon to be made in the Dennison yards. A round house is among the new buildings on the schedule.

BETTER THAN SPANKING

Spanking does not cure children of bad habits. It only makes them more stubborn. The only way to cure them is by using Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs and Colds. It is a sure cure for all kinds of coughs and colds, and it is better than spanking. It is a family tonic for the sick and afflicted. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea, 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. C. E. Anderson.

King Daudi Chwa of Uganda.

The newest thing in kings is the boy monarch of Uganda, his highness the Kabaka Daudi Chwa. He does not look like a brainy statesman, but is said to be a marked improvement over former rulers of Uganda. He is fifteen years of age and is a son of the late King Mwanga, whose conduct as possessor of Uganda was so reprehensible that he had to be deposed.

Negroes in Heaven. "I knew an Irishman in Amesbury," Mr. Whittier once said, his eyes twinkling at the remembrance, "who was very much opposed to social equality for the negro. I said to him, 'But there are many Catholic negroes in Brazil, the West Indies and other places. Thy church accounts of them as it does of thee. And thee'll have to come to it in heaven. There'll have to meet the negroes there on equal terms.' I thought that I had silenced him with an unanswerable argument. He sat musing for a moment, then, looking up at me, 'And can't the Lord make them white in heaven, Mr. Whittier?'"

WINONA LAKE THIS SEASON

Will be Particularly Attractive for An Cutting.
The summer of 1905 is to be an especially attractive season at Winona Lake, the beautiful resort of Northern Indiana on the Pennsylvania lines. The Presbyterian General Assembly will convene there May 18th. Noted speakers and musicians have been engaged for the summer entertainments. There will be conventions and social and religious conferences from May until September. The literary representation will be prominent. In brief, it will be a most profitable season educationally. Teachers and students who attend the summer school will derive much benefit. Winona Lake has golf links, tennis courts, baseball and cricket grounds, boating, fishing, swimming and camping facilities. The Pennsylvania lines run direct to the park entrance. Season and fifteen day excursion tickets may be obtained from ticket agents of the Pennsylvania lines. Information about Winona Lake, the summer school, and the season's program, may be obtained from the Pennsylvania lines.

HUNDREDS OF IDLE MEN ARE CROWDED IN ZANESVILLE

On last Monday morning Adams Brothers, the well known contractors began the work of excavating for the new federal building. A force of twenty men were employed.

By noon of that day Adams Brothers had received one hundred and fifty applications for employment from idle men looking for jobs.

This, on authority of a member of the firm, who expressed himself as greatly surprised at the number of idle men in Zanesville.

Here is something for the new Chamber of Commerce to consider. Such a great number of idle men clearly demonstrates that Zanesville is other than a prosperous city.—Zanesville Sunday News.

SUNSHINY WEATHER MADE FINE MARKET

There was a decided increase in the attendance at market Saturday morning owing to the fine sunny weather. Fifty-two vendors were on hand and a host of Coshocton people crowded the stands and bought the farm products for their Sunday table. Eggs were plentiful at fifteen cents per dozen. Butter was somewhat scarce and sold at twenty-five cents per pound. Dressed chickens sold at fifteen cents per pound and potatoes and apples sold at fifty cents per bushel. Maple syrup was offered at one dollar per gallon. Besides these many other articles such as hominy, beans, kraut, cottage cheese, etc., were purchasable.

WILL CLARK'S FINE STALLIONS

The two fine stallions purchased by Will Clark from the Lisle brothers at Killbuck arrived here Thursday night and are beautiful specimens of horseflesh. One is a Percheron Norman, an imported French stallion, going by the name of "Roblot" and the other is an imported English stallion of the Suffolk Punch breed, and bears the name "Druid." Mr. Clark will keep them here during the coming season.

Spring Vacation.
The Coshocton schools will close for the spring vacation next Friday. The vacation will last a week.

They Beat the Band

The band can only play band music but those new improved $20 talking machines that Burns & Gosser are GIVING AWAY FREE will play any kind of music, sing any song or make a speech. Here's an opportunity to make your home happy and enjoy life. In order to have them more generally introduced, we will extend for a short time only, the greatest offer possible. Rolla Peacock, whose arm was badly wrenched in an accident at the Houston Hay Axle works, a few days ago, is not improving and his condition is such to cause grave fears.

Mrs. G. W. Welter, who has been ill for several days at her home on Chestnut street, is improving.

E. W. Adams who has been ill on Walnut street is able to be up. Miss Dorothea Adams is not improving very rapidly.

Special Meeting.

The Eagles will hold a special meeting Sunday afternoon at one o'clock in their hall in the Forbes building.

MRS. EARL SMITH'S FUNERAL TOMORROW

The funeral services over the remains of the late Mrs. Edna Mayhew Smith will be held from her late home on Main street Sunday afternoon at half past two o'clock. Rev. Mr. Johnston of the Eleventh Street Church of Christ will conduct the services, the music will be furnished by the church choir and interment will be made in South Lawn cemetery.

The pall bearers will be six uncles of Mrs. Smith, James Stone of Byesville, Frank Stone of Wheeling and Charles, Delbert, Will and Harry Stone of Linton Mills.

It's a Fact!

That Facts are Stubborn Things

One fact is that we are not in the jewelry business at present nor are we showing dummy watches. But it is an absolute fact that we have on exhibition a dummy piano with a strach action in it. Come in and hear it. It is a good piano for us to show to the ladies as well as the business men of the town. As to the suckers we don't know them. The fake piano sale business perhaps caught them before we came to town. This fake piano business has been running here as we understood for the past thirty years.

We invite you to come to No. 542 Main street, Carlton's new building, and judge for yourself, bringing your musical friends with you. All are invited. Good music on good pianos. Open evenings.

NEXT TO LEADERS That's Where Dope Fiends Have Placed Red-Legs

Young Bloods on Cincinnati Team Have Been Making Great Showing at Jacksonville---Reds Play Boston Americans at Jacksonville Sunday---Newsy Letter of Sports.

Cincinnati, March 25—(Special)—Favorable reports from the various training quarters of big league teams in the south continue to feed the fires of enthusiasm of the followers of baseball in the north. The Cincinnati team, after a season of bad weather at Jacksonville, appears finally to have been favored with real Florida sunshine, and the result is that the men are rapidly getting into condition for the regular championship season, which opens in the Queen City on April 14th, when the Reds will have the Pittsburgs for their opponents for four days, including a Sunday. Before they come north Manager Kelley's men will play at least one notable series, this being a trio of contests with the Boston Americans, winners of the championship in the American league last season, and generally recognized as the world's champions. These games will be played on March 31st and April 1st and 2nd at Jacksonville. Later on—April 13th being the date—the same teams will meet in Cincinnati, and it is expected that one of the largest crowds of the season will be out to witness that contest. The Reds' first appearance at home will be on April 8th and 9th, when the Vets and Colts meet. The Clevelanders come for games on April 10th, 11th and 12th. The Reds' Colts will leave Jacksonville on next Monday night, while the Vets will remain a week longer.

Jiu-Jitsu Explains.
The alleged black eye which jiu-jitsu received through an exponent of the art meeting defeat several times at the hands of American wrestlers has been nicely painted by an expert, who makes the declaration that jiu-jitsu is essentially a science of self-defense, which is worked while the belligerents are dressed in their usual garments, and is not to be confounded with the wrestling game at all, for the reason that it can not be properly practiced under wrestling rules. This expert is willing to wager any reasonable sum, up into the thousands, if the same Jap who was defeated at wrestling is locked in a room with his former opponent, that the Jap will be able to emerge from the apartment within ten minutes with his antagonist tied hand and foot. As yet no taker of the proposed wager has been found.

Some Dope.
It begins to look as though expectations regarding several of the new members of the Cincinnati team would be realized. Particularly is this true of Chech, Overall, Blankenship and Bridwell. The two first named look like pitchers of the greatest promise, their work so far developing qualities that they had not been praised for before, and which add to the generally accepted effectiveness of their work. Blankenship has shown extraordinary form in catching, throwing, and ground-covering, but as yet has not done much hitting. Nevertheless, he is believed to have a slight advantage over Street for the extra catching position. Bridwell's work on the infield has been a revelation, and there is every reason to believe that he will remain with the team. He, too, has been a trifle shy in batting, but is expected to develop this quality within the next few weeks. The other new men also are working well but hardly attract the attention inspired by the quartette named.

Dove of Peace.
The clash between the two New Orleans tracks will end this week, when the Crescent City Jockey Club, a member of the Western Turf Congress, will close its gates in order not to interfere with the races at Memphis, run under the same auspices.

Governor E. W. Hoch of Kansas.
Governor Edward Wallace Hoch of Kansas, who was swept into office last fall by the tide of popular sentiment and in spite of the opposition of many politicians in his party, is the editor of a country paper. Two years ago he sought the office of state printer, and the circumstances of his defeat for this position created a sentiment in his favor that resulted in his nomination for the more exalted post of chief executive of the state. Governor Hoch was born in Kentucky fifty-three years ago and was educated and learned the printing trade in the Blue Grass State. Soon after he reached his majority he removed to Kansas and for a time set type on a paper at Lawrence. He also ran this paper for a few months, but in 1888 found employment in the Bureau of Census. The Kansas State Printer's Office was then in the hands of a man named...

pieces. The City Park track, governed by the American Turf association April 15th, thus securing three weeks of racing without local opposition. A number of good horses will remain at City Park for the finish.

A Coming Mill.
Next Tuesday night Marvin Hart and Jack Johnson, the colored champion, will meet before the San Francisco Athletic club. Both men are hard at work for their 20-round battle, and it is expected to be a hard fight, provided Johnson bets a good start, in which event he probably will not show the white feather. The winner of the fight will challenge Jeffries; but only in case Hart wins will there be a meeting with the champion, who bars the colored man.

Hard on Records.
Ralph Rose, the former Michigan University athletic star, still is breaking records. The big fellow, who is accused of having a disposition on a par with that of Rube Waddell, the famous but eccentric pitcher of the Philadelphia Athletics, recently put the 16-pound shot fifty feet and one inch. This performance is better by one foot and a half inch than his best previous indoor record, which also stands as a world's figure. Rose seems to be able to smash anything he comes in contact with—heads, rules, and records.

The Big Event.
The Montgomery Handicap, the first big turf event of the year, will be decided next Monday afternoon at Montgomery Park, Memphis. The field will be large and will include such good horses as Ram's Horn, Phil Finch, Dalvay, Leonidas, Pretension, Tokalon, and others. McChesney and Mohar's were declared out of the race some days ago. Ram's Horn is the favorite in the betting at this writing at 5 to 1. Capt. Williams owns Ram's Horn and Phil Finch, and it is more than likely that this pair will be installed the favorites on the day of the race.

Pipe Dreaming.
Bettors are beginning to lay wagers on the National League race, and as is natural, the New York Giants, winners of the championship last year, have been installed as the favorites. Because of the favorable reports that have come from the south concerning the work of the members of the Cincinnati team, the Reds are generally conceded second place in the race. Pittsburg and Chicago are picked for the other two positions in the first division, while St. Louis, Boston, Brooklyn, and Philadelphia are again consigned to the second division of four clubs. However, baseball dope has ever been known to be uncertain, and as the race is a long one it is a wise precaution for prospective bettors not to make any bets.

Looking for Britt.
Jabez White, the English lightweight champion, arrived in New York early in the week and now is seeking a match with Jimmy Britt. There is no other fighter in America whom White desires to meet, and if he can not secure a match with Britt he will return to his native health and say mean things about Uncle Sam's fighters. It is generally conceded that White would give Britt a stiff argument. He is fast, clever, a good two-handed fighter, and is 5 feet 7 1/2 inches in height. White is accompanied by Charlie Mitchell, the former English heavyweight champion. White's best prospects for a match with Britt lie in a continuation of the controversy between Nelson (whom Britt is to fight next) and the Yosemite Athletic club. Nelson claims that the club offered Britt an extra ten per cent. of the gross receipts for his fight with him, and he demands the same concession from the Yosemite or he'll not fight. If neither side gives in, Britt and White will be matched forthwith.

Racing's Bad Days.
The various state legislatures are getting extremely busy these days enacting bills that are aimed to kill racing. Following the passing of a breeders' bill in Missouri, that is expected to prevent pool-selling on races and so do away with racing, the Tennessee legislature has enacted a measure that will stop racing in that state after December 1st of this year. It is promised that the race meetings at Memphis and Nashville will not be interfered with but if they are, the Memphis officials will arrange to race in Mississippi in close proximity to Memphis. Chicago also fears for racing this summer, and tracks now are being leased in Indiana near the Illinois state line in anticipation of a shutting down of the Chicago courses.

Teams Hard at Work In Preliminary Practice. Indoor Work In College "Gyms" an Important Feature---Gossip of the Game.

Any man that takes the trouble to put an ear to the ground will readily distinguish the sound of baseball's footsteps. The season is almost here, and, in the words of the poet, the heart of the nation rejoiceth.

Practically all the major league teams are in training camps in the south, oiling rusty hinges and dispersing cobwebs from brains that have been engaged principally in cultivating the penicill crop during the last five months.

So far as the colleges are concerned, chief interest at present centers in the indoor practice preliminary to the actual opening of the coming season's programme of sports.

First Place For Baseball.
Baseball practice holds, of course, chief place, but the boating enthusiasts are just as hard at work developing the best material for the crews, and the average college "gym" is just now a busy place.

The manner in which indoor training for field sports has been developed within the last few years would sur-player through indoor practice, it is generally agreed that as a time saver, in conjunction with the "weeding out" process, indoor training for baseball is a success.

The backwardness of the season generally has prolonged indoor practice to a great extent, but the majority of collegians will be doing outdoor work in a very short time.

The New York Americans.

Manager Clark Griffith of the New York Americans has a strong aggregation this year and hopes to turn the tables on his arch enemies, the Bostonians, who won the pennant a year ago on Jack Chesbro's wild pitch.

"Grit" has Conroy, Elberfeld, Williams, Anderson, Chesbro, Clarkson, Powell, Orth, Puttmann, Dougherty, Fultz, Keeler, Kleinow, McGuire, Hogg, Whitely, Chase and Metcalfe. Surely there is plenty of championship material in this array. Pitcher Puttmann is a left hander now practicing with the Highlanders at Montgomery, Ala. He is paying special attention to the "spit ball" and is believed to be the only left hander having this style under control.

The Boston Triumvirate.

There comes an end to all things mundane. The Boston National club's famous triumvirate, Messrs. Soden, Conant and Billings, has at last been broken by the retirement of Mr. Billings from active connection with baseball after thirty years of uninterrupted history making. So runs the world away! Mr. Billings was always a strong factor in the Boston club's affairs. He also did much for baseball in an unobtrusive way and now retires from the game with the respect and good wishes of his colleagues in particular and baseball lovers in general. He has well earned a rest from the strenuous game, and we trust he will enjoy to the utmost the remainder of his span of life in his honorable retirement.

Scoring Calls For Good Judgment.

not favor reviving the old "shoulder and hip" rule merely to kill this special delivery, which the batsmen will soon solve. Sound sense is that. We take off our hat to M. Lajoie.

Baseball In Canada.

It is a fact that baseball in its conquering march is subjugating the Canadian national game, lacrosse. This is proved by the fact that in the provinces of Quebec and Toronto there are hundreds of amateur baseball clubs and semiprofessional leagues, while the lacrosse clubs have dwindled to infinitesimal numbers. But the very best indication of solid baseball growth is the fact that instead of hundreds of boys with the netted stick, as of old, nowadays only youngsters with bat and ball are to be seen.

Anson's Latest Growl.

The retired veteran player, Anson, says there are no great batsmen these days and that hitting is a forgotten art. Lajoie, Billy Keeler, Frank Chance, Mike Donlin, Cy Seymour, Hans Wagner, Clarence Beaumont, Fred Clarke, Jake Beckley and a few others that might be mentioned are pretty good stickers these days, and they carry a bigger handicap than ever was taken on by Anson, Brothers, Connor and the others who were sluggers in their day.

Turner Is Formidable.

Rube Turner, the colored lightweight, is still in Philadelphia, unable to get a match with one of the presumed higher boys in his class. He will do 130 pounds for any of them and might stretch a point and do 125 as an inducement. There is a whole raft of boxers in Phillie who announce their willingness to go at 130 pounds at 6 o'clock or 3 o'clock, and yet when the name of Turner is mentioned they retreat.

Major General Arthur MacArthur.

Major General Arthur MacArthur, U. S. A., who was invited to accompany the Japanese army in Manchuria and inspect the military operations there, is a veteran of two wars and senior major general of the United States army. He looks very young, and no one would take him for a veteran of the civil war. He was only fifteen when that war began, and his father had hard work to prevent his running away and joining the army at that age. Two years later he got into the fighting as a lieutenant in the Twenty-fourth Wisconsin regiment and was at once assigned to duty as regimental adjutant. He was so boyish looking that the soldiers at first laughed at him, but they soon learned he had the stuff of which great soldiers are made. He was major of a veteran regiment before he was nineteen years old. After the war MacArthur entered the regular army and won a reputation as an Indian fighter. He was conspicuous in the Spanish war and was commander of the forces in the Philippines for some time.

Tom Jenkins of Cleveland Finally Wins From Gotch.

The recent recapture of the American wrestling championship by Tom Jenkins of Cleveland has proved one of the most talked of happenings of the year.

Coe, Shot Wonder.

Career of New Rival of Ralph Rose --- Michigan Athletics.

Wesley W. Coe of Somerville, Mass., is the new sensation of the athletic world. Coe is a phenomenal shot putter and is a worthy rival of Ralph W. Rose, the former Michigan university wonder. Quite recently the easterner put the sixteen pound shot 49 feet 7 1/4 inches, breaking the record previously held by Rose of 48 feet 7 inches.

Although James E. Sullivan, secretary of the Amateur Athletic union, COE PUTTING THE SHOT.

"threw out" Coe's record put because it was made with an unofficial shot, the feat was a striking evidence of the New Englander's ability. He is looked on as the coming champion.

Coe is now twenty five years of age, is five feet ten inches in height and weighs 226 pounds.

Rose is six feet six inches in height and weighs 250 pounds. Rose dislikes severe training, but since his best mark has been endangered by Coe he expected to work harder.

Coe, who has been prominent as a shot putter for a number of years, was at one time a student at Oxford university. Secretary Sullivan, who is chairman of the record committee of the Amateur Athletic union, was in Boston recently and in connection with the officials of the New England association examined the shot that Coe put at the games at Medford, Mass., when he made the new world's record of 49 feet 7 1/4 inches.

The shot was not an official metal sphere, but a bag of buckshot covered with leather and usually used for indoor practice and is not allowed when a world's record or an American record is to be made.

Investigation also brought out that had the shot been a metal sphere the record would not have been allowed, for at this meeting they did not have a wood or iron ring.

Michigan apparently does not need Rose. A sensation was sprung by the rooters in Michigan's varsity track meet recently when, instead of one extraordinary shot putter, two made an appearance. The men are Dunlap and Garrels. Dunlap scored a put of 45 feet 2 inches, while Garrels threw the weight 43 feet 6 inches. Dunlap is a senior and Garrels a sophomore. Both showed good form last year, but were overshadowed by Rose.

Good time was made in the quarter mile run by the two veterans, Goodwin and Garrels. They finished within a fraction of a second of each other, Goodwin leading. The time, 53 4/5 seconds, was within a fifth of a second of the Michigan indoor record.

Eccentric Wagon Wheel.

A very interesting paradox is the one concerning an ordinary wagon wheel, which is solid and rigid, yet when fastened on its axle on a wagon when the wagon moves part of the circumference of the wheel which is in contact with the ground is for an instant at absolute rest, while the point directly perpendicular to it is flying along at a high rate of speed. The two points horizontal with the center of the wheel are traveling pretty fast, but only half as fast as the topmost point, and so the speed the down going one shows up as it is at rest for a moment.

Jack Harkaway's Schooldays

....By BRACEBRIDGE HEMYNG

CHAPTER VIII.

JACK HARKAWAY was restless and excited, though his habitual self possession would not have permitted a casual observer to notice it. Walking quickly toward the river, he strolled along by the bank, watching the fish rise after the flies and regretting that he did not bring a rod and line with him. Soon he almost forgot his trouble. The stern Mr. Mole faded away before the rippling stream and the pleasant sunbeams. His school-boy heart could not continue heavy, and he plucked flowers, chased butterflies and threw stones at the fish and the birds as merrily as if he were not playing truant and had not to fear the anger of his tutor on his return for his disobedience.

Suddenly he heard a loud cry. This was followed by another and another. It struck him that the voice was familiar, and he rushed forward. The river here made a bend, so that he could see nothing until he rounded the corner. There was a noise of splashing, more cries, then a gurgling sound, and all was comparatively still. He had not gone far before a couple of skulls floated past him. These were followed by a boat bottom upward.

"Somebody has swamped," thought Jack. "I hope they are in no danger." The next moment he came full against a boy who was standing on the bank dripping wet. He was holding on by the branch of a tree and peering down into the clear depth of the river. In his face was an expression of agony.

"Hunston!" cried Jack.

"Oh, Harkaway," he cried in piteous accents, "what shall I do, what shall I do?"

"What's the matter?" said Jack.

"Fisher!"

"Where is he?" Jack asked almost fiercely.

"Down there. I saw him sink, and you know I can't swim. How I got on shore was a wonder, but I caught the root of a tree, and—"

"Down where?" asked Jack.

"He's there—down at the bottom of the river! Can't you see? His eyes are shut, but he is lying on his back in the weeds."

Jack took one look. It was true that Fisher, when the boat capsized, made a desperate effort to reach land and keep afloat. Hunston, anxious for self preservation, was unable to render him any assistance. At length he sunk and lay still and quiet among the weeds which grew rankly at the bottom of the river. Fortunately the stream there was not more than eight feet deep. Jack calculated the distance by a rapid glance and with incredible rapidity had off his coat, waistcoat and boots. Standing on the edge of the bank he plunged in head foremost. Jack dived like an otter, and when he reached the bottom twined his arms around Fisher's inanimate body. By the exercise of a prodigious effort Jack succeeded in loosening Fisher's body from the encircling weeds. Then he placed his feet firmly against the ground and jerked himself upward. He was glad enough to draw his breath, for he had been under water nearly three-quarters of a minute. Striking out with one hand and holding Fisher with the other he struck out for the shore.

Hunston leaned over and holding on to a tree, held out his disengaged hand, by which means he gave him material assistance. At length the boy and his senseless burden effected a toting on the bank. When he reached dry land, he felt back exhausted. Hunston placed Fisher on the grass under a tree and wondered if he was dead.

Suddenly a voice which appeared to proceed from some neighboring bush exclaimed in tones of the deepest thankfulness, "Thank Heaven! Jack raised himself up on his elbow and said, "Did you hear that?"

"No," replied Hunston, who was farther off. "What was it?"

"I thought I heard somebody, and, hark, isn't that the rustling of a woman's dress?"

"More likely the wind among the trees. I wish I could hear or see somebody. What's to be done with Fisher?"

Jack listened for a few moments and, hearing nothing more, got up and walked over to Hunston. "It must have been my fancy, though I could have sworn I heard some one in that thick- et," he said.

Hunston never once thanked Harkaway for the service he had rendered him in saving Fisher's life, which he seemed to take as a matter of course.

"What's the proper thing to do in cases of drowning?" asked Hunston. "Hang them up by the feet to let the water out?"

"I don't know much about it, but I have read that that is just the very thing you ought not to do," answered Jack, with a half smile. "You want to keep the blood from the head, not send it there. Lay him down as if he was in bed, and cover him with the moss on the bank. Run your hand far a gillow, and you'll be all right."

will take me full five minutes to get my boots on."

Hunston made no reply. His odious selfishness showed itself at every turn. Luckily there was a hail from the river. "Hello, you young gents! What's up?" exclaimed a voice, which they recognized as old Simon's.

He had come up with a gentleman in a punt who was desirous of having an hour or two's fishing in a favorite hole of his, and on the way Simon had noticed his boat bottom upward, with the skulls not far off. He knew that an accident had happened by these tokens. "Only a swamp," answered Hunston in a loud voice.

"Any damage done?"

"Not much. It's all right." Turning to Jack, he added: "Go into those bushes, will you, until I come to you. I have got into this bother myself and want to get out of it in my own way. I don't want you to be seen in it. Let me do as I like in this instance as a favor, will you? I'll never forget your kindness if you will."

"Shall you be long?"

"No; my idea is to get old Simon to take Fisher to his house. He'll do it better and quicker by water than we shall by land."

"Very well," Jack replied.

Taking his clothes in his hands, he darted into the bushes indicated by Hunston just as Simon had landed and came into sight. When Simon, followed by the angler, caught sight of Fisher, he shook his head.

"Drowned!" he said. "I thought you could swim, young gentleman."

"I can swim well enough," Hunston boldly answered in reply to the boatman. "I had to go in after my friend here because he got caught in the weeds. But he's not dead; he'll soon come to if you will attend to him."

"That's a different matter," said Simon, "and I'm glad to see you had the pluck in you. I always take a gentleman's word, and when you said you could swim, why, I let you have the boat."

"It's a bad affair, but I think the boy will come round," the stranger remarked.

"A warm bath and blankets will do him more good than anything else, with a drop of spirits," replied Simon, "and if you don't mind fishing from the bank, sir, for once, I'll take the punt back to my house and see to him." "Certainly; take it, and I will lend you a hand. You have two poles, and two can punt better than one."

"That's true enough, sir, and thank you," Simon rejoined. "You're like me. You can't bear to see a fellow creature in distress. Bear a hand, sir. I'm going to take you at your word. We'll lift him gently. See, he breathes, and that's one comfort. Lor', what a way Mr. Crawcour would be in if he knew one of his boys had been in the water like this!"

"Thank you, Simon," said Hunston. "I always knew you were not a bad old sort, and I will see that you are rewarded for your trouble."

"I don't want any reward but that of my own conscience. Are you coming with us?"

"No; I shall only be in the way. If I come, it will make the boat heavier, so I'll run along the bank and get to the house as soon as you."

"Right," said Simon, who, with the aid of the stranger, carried the still inanimate boy to the punt.

He was laid comfortably on the bottom of the punt, which, by the energetic exertions of the two men, rapidly disappeared in the distance and was soon concealed from view by the overhanging alder and pollard willows, whose pendant branches drooped in the stream.

As may be imagined, Hunston's reluctance to accompany the punt arose from his wish to speak to Jack. His vanity had prompted him to take upon himself the merit of saving Fisher's life, and he thought he knew Jack well enough to be sure that he should find him a willing tool in his hands.

"Jack!" he cried. "Harkaway! Jack!" Out of the bushes came Jack, who had contrived to dress himself and was shivering from the effects of his immersion.

"Is he gone?" asked Jack.

"Yes, down to old Simon's. The responsibility is on their shoulders now, and he will be quite safe with them."

"How did it happen?" continued Jack.

"Oh, I don't know. I was larking, trying to frighten Fisher by moving the boat on one side, then on the other. He got into a funk, lost his balance, and the accident occurred. It was a wonder we weren't both drowned!"

"Perhaps you're reserved for another fate," observed Jack slyly.

"Don't laugh."

"I'm not laughing."

"Don't chaff, then," said Hunston, "or I shall think you still want to quarrel with me, when I wish to be friends with you."

"I don't, indeed," replied Jack.

"Give me your hand on it, then."

"Will you?"

"Because I didn't go in. That's easy enough, isn't it?" replied Jack.

"You wouldn't do it?"

"No. It was some chapters in the Bible, and I did not see why he should pick me out to be punished when you were just as bad as I, so I determined to stick out against it."

"Oh, my, won't you catch it! I wouldn't be you when you get back!" Hunston cried, with mock commiseration. "I'm sorry for you."

"You needn't be. I don't want your sorrow. I know what I'm about," Jack said.

"I've been here longer than you," exclaimed Hunston after a moment's reflection, "and I'll tell you how to get out of it."

"How?"

"Go back to school. Don't say anything about our swamp or saving Fisher. He don't know, and when Mole asks you for your impo, say you couldn't write because you had the cramp in your hand."

"Would that be right?" Jack asked doubtfully.

"Did he deal fairly with you?" said Hunston.

"No."

"Well, then, why should you have any hesitation in cheating him? I once tried the same dodge, and it succeeded splendidly."

"What? Cramp in your hand?"

"Yes, the cramp dodge. Lots of fellows have done it."

"All right, I'll try it," said Jack.

"By adopting my plan you will probably get off scot free."

"That's true," said Jack, who was unable to stand against this mode of argument.

"Cut away, then. I'll back you up like a brick, and mind one thing."

"What is that?"

"Don't say a word about what has occurred here, or you will only get me into a row and do yourself no good."

Jack nodded and started off at a brisk trot to the school, while Hunston started for the boat-house.

When he got back to the school, Jack changed his clothes and then went to the schoolroom and sat down and read a book, as he had some time to while away before tea. A little before 6 Mr. Mole entered the schoolroom and looked round him.

"Harkaway," he said, "have you finished your punishment?"

"No, sir; I haven't done it."

"Not done it?" repeated Mr. Mole, growing red in the face with rising anger. "Why, may I ask?"

"Because I had the cramp in my right hand, sir, and, not being left handed, I could not write with the other."

Jack felt that he flushed while telling this falsehood and cast down his eyes, being afraid to look the master in the face.

"In-deed!" exclaimed Mr. Mole. "When did this remarkable attack of cramp come on?"

"Directly I got in, sir. I must have hurt the sinews in the fight."

So one lie brings about another.

"That shows the folly and the danger of fighting. It shows also my justice in punishing you. How is your hand now?"

"Rather stiff and painful, sir, thank you," Jack replied.

"I hope you will be better soon. I will reconsider your case tomorrow."

With these words Mr. Mole walked away to another part of the room, but he was not convinced of the truth of Harkaway's excuse. It will be remembered that we have described Maple, Hunston's friend, as a sneak. Perhaps Mr. Mole knew Maple's character, for he went to him, seeing him cutting out a boat from a piece of wood in the yard.

"Maple," said he, "will you go to Harkaway and ask him to write you a letter to your mother?"

"Yes, sir. But can't I write it myself?" inquired Maple.

"I don't want you to do that. Say you have cut your thumb, and tie a handkerchief round it."

Maple did so with the utmost readiness.

"Don't say a word to Harkaway about the request I made to you. When the letter is written, come to me here."

Maple promised compliance and went at once to the schoolroom, where Mr. Mole told him he would find Jack.

Jack was biting his nails and thinking over the adventures of the afternoon.

"I say, Harkaway," said Maple.

"So, my boy," said Mr. Mole, with a perceptible tinge of triumph in his tone, "I have found you out, have I? You can write when you like, but not when I like."

"Please, sir, the cramp's gone away. It went away as suddenly as it came," Jack said, putting a good face on the matter.

"I do not believe in these sudden cures."

"Ask a doctor, sir."

"I shall do nothing of the sort, and beg you will not talk to me in that impudent manner. You are a hardened, deceitful, quarrelsome, little boy, and I will have you punished. When I make my report personally to Mr. Crawcour tonight, I shall complain of you and make no doubt you will be soundly caned."

He walked away.

"You've got me into a nice row," remarked Jack in a lugubrious tone to Maple. "The prospect of a caning is not very pleasant, but it is being found out in a lie that annoys me. It is bad enough to tell one, for it is always on your conscience, and for others to know it makes it ever so much worse."

"You'll get used to it," said Maple consolingly.

The bell now rang for tea, and the boys proceeded to the lavatory to get themselves ready for the meal. There was great excitement among the boys, who were talking about something that had happened. They were talking about Hunston and Fisher, the latter of whom had, it appeared, been just brought to the house and put to bed much better—quite sensible and able to recognize and speak to his friends. There had been a swamp on the river, they said, and had it not been for Hunston's bravery in rushing to the rescue Fisher must have gone to the bottom and been drowned. Jack listened to all this and smiled. Hunston himself was the center of an excited group. Boys patted him encouragingly on the back, saying: "Bravo, old fellow! Well done! Very plucky thing indeed. Saved his life, and no mistake. He's got something to thank you for. Bravo, bravo!"

He was the hero of the hour.

When the tea bell rang a second time, all the boys scampered off to their places. Hunston looked round anxiously when he was comparatively alone.

He was searching for some one.

Presently he saw Jack crossing the yard and darted over to him. "Oh, here you are, Harkaway," he said, in a nervous tone. "I've been looking for you everywhere. You haven't said anything?"

"Not a word. I gave you my word, and I shall keep it."

"That's right; keep dark. It is the only way to pull you through."

And he went in to tea.

A Gentle From Utah.

George Sutherland, who was recently chosen by the Utah legislature to succeed Thomas W. Kearns in the United States senate, was representative in congress from Utah from 1901 to 1903, is a lawyer and has served in the Utah legislature. He was born in England

In 1892. Though of Mormon parentage, he is a gentle and is friendly with the authorities of the Mormon church and with Senator Smoot, who is an apostle of that church.

Danger of Hypnotism.

Even with the best understanding of the subject now possible, there is danger in originating anything that puts a hypnotized person under his own control—in other words, that originates automatism, writes Dr. M. A. Veeder in the Medical Record. So long as the subject is under the control of the hypnotizer absolutely there is not so much danger, but let him go out under his own control—and he runs without a balance wheel. In this way auto suggestion, which fortunately is more difficult and exceptional, may originate exceedingly unpleasant experiences. The writer has even come to the conclusion that there may be causes of insanity confined to institutions that, if the truth were known, are really of this type.

English Gardens and Ours.

There is a fundamental difference between the English and the American garden. The Englishman's garden is well walled as essential as his house. It is like an extra room to the residence. It is for the family rather than for the public. It therefore works itself into the developing consciousness of childhood, and garden love becomes as much a part of the person as books and literature and music do. The American garden is likely to be all in all.

Bowser Tries to Box

Plans to Knock Out a Sickly Neighbor as Huge Joke and Is in High Glee—Mrs. B. Warns Victim Her Spouse Hits Hard—Latter Gets a Surprise.

(Copyright, 1936, by T. C. McClure.)

WHEN Mr. Bowser reached home the other evening he was smiling. As he took off his overcoat he chuckled. As Mrs. Bowser came out into the hall to greet him he burst into a hearty laugh. She had rather expected him to come home that evening and demand to see the gas bill and declare that she was burning too much coal and that there were half a dozen extravagances that must be cut out, and her surprise over his great good nature made her speechless for a moment. Then she asked:

"Has—has anything happened?"

"Nothing so very great," he replied, "but there's a little event to come off in a couple of hours from now that will make even the old cat laugh. Ha, ha, ha!"

"I haven't heard you laugh so heartily in a dog's age. What event is coming off? If you brought that grin all the way home with you folks must have concluded that you had drawn the capital prize in a lottery."

"You don't know Wilkins," said Mr. Bowser as they got seated at the dinner table. "He lives four or five blocks below us and has an office next to mine. He is a tall, lathy gandershauns, and he thinks he's got incipient consumption. He has begun to take exercise to broaden his chest. He—he—Ha, ha, ha!"

"Are you laughing at his constitution?"

"No, of course not. He wants to take boxing lessons with it all, and he came to me today to learn if I knew anything of the art. I told him I could box a little bit, and he's coming up here tonight to get a few lessons. Yes, he's—he's—"

"I don't see where the laugh comes in," said Mrs. Bowser as Mr. Bowser had another fit of laughter.

"Then I'll tell you. You remember when I had a teacher, don't you? Well, one night he hauled off and knocked an, and she was afraid I might damage your husband. Perhaps we'd better call it off."

"Hear him!" exclaimed Mr. Bowser as he slapped his leg and chuckled all over. "I was telling Mrs. Bowser that I guessed I had better tie my hands behind my back and let you do all the nitting, and here you are afraid for me! Well, that's funny!"

Mrs. Bowser couldn't make Mr. Wilkins out. He was either an amateur with a heap of confidence back of him or he understood himself and had an object in view. She therefore had nothing further to say, and the men disappeared upstairs. What occurred up there she will never fully understand, as neither man went into particulars. When they had reached the garret and were stripping for the fray Mr. Bowser uttered a chuckle and said:

"Now, Wilkins, if I get to going too hard you must call out."

"Oh, certainly," was the reply, "and I shall expect you to do the same. I shouldn't want to lay you up for two or three days."

"Lay me up! Ha, ha, ha! Say, Wilkins, you are something of a humorist in your way. We'll time ourselves as near as we can for three minute rounds, and if you feel like warming up come for me as hot as you please."

"But I shall be careful not to hurt you. Your wife seemed rather anxious on that point."

"Oh, she did, eh? Ha, ha, ha! By George, but I haven't enjoyed myself as well in a whole year! Afe you ready? Then, one—two—three!"

Mr. Wilkins squared off like a novice and used his arms like an old woman, and Mr. Bowser had to stop now and then to laugh. The round closed without anybody having been hurt, and when they stood up for the next Mr. Bowser went in to make it a rattler. To his great surprise his visitor managed to ward or dodge all his blows, but by such awkwardness that it called for smiles all the time. The third seven bells out of me, and I carried two black eyes for a week. I have never had a chance since to get even on that, but now it has come. I'll play with Wilkins for a few minutes, and then I'll—"

HE SAW THE OPENING AND SWUNG FOR IT.

"You'll choke yourself if you don't look out. What are you going to do to Mr. Wilkins?"

"I'll knock the head off his shoulders. I'll fent with my left and then swing my right, and when it lands on his chin he won't wake up for thirty minutes."

"You won't do anything of the kind. You ought to be ashamed to think of it. If the man is in poor health a hard blow may kill him."

"His health is all right, but he is faddy. And when talking with me he was squaring off and shooting out his left and telling how many men he was going to lick after taking a few lessons. He wants taking down, and I'm going to do it for him. I'll let him tap me three or four times, and then I'll suddenly haul off and—ha, ha, ha!"

"It will be a mean trick if you do," observed Mrs. Bowser. "It seems to me that a man of your standing should be in better business. Suppose it gets around the neighborhood that you are a prize fighter? That would be a nice thing for the papers, wouldn't it?"

"Bowser, the bruiser, knocks a tyro out and nearly kills him! I don't want anything of the kind to happen around this house."

"All right, my dear. I'll treat him like a two-year-old. Only it just struck me that here was a chance to get back and—"

Mrs. Bowser determined to put Mr. Wilkins on his guard when he came in, and half an hour later he rang the bell. He was invited to sit for a few minutes before ascending to the garret and at a proper moment was told that Mr. Bowser sometimes got excited when he had the gloves on and hit harder than he meant to.

"Yes," he answered. "Well, most men are that way. I know I am, and he will have to look out for himself a little. Perhaps I ought to box him with only one hand."

round was to be a corker. Mr. Wilkins was not to be murdered outright, but he was to be given some pointers in the manly art to last him all the rest of his life.

"I may strike a little too hard, but you know I told you to call out," said Mr. Wilkins as he stood up to the mark.

"Go right in, my boy, to knock the head out of the cider barrel and don't mind me," replied Mr. Bowser, and then he chuckled deep down in his chest at the crisis that was coming.

That right swing of his was due in the third round, and he felt that he must hang on to himself a bit and not break Mr. Wilkins' neck and have a coroner's inquest on hand.

The two mixed things up for a minute, and then Mr. Bowser's golden opportunity came. He saw the opening and swung for it, and he had started to chuckle when the house fell on him. Roof, walls and everything gave way at once, and his last remembrance was seeing the earnest face of Mr. Wilkins before him. The visitor shortly after made his appearance downstairs and said to Mrs. Bowser:

"My dear madam, I am pained to tell you that your husband is lying in a peaceful sleep on the garret floor and that it will be useless to try to waken him for the next quarter of an hour. He won't die of it, but he will know more about the manly art tomorrow. Tell him that I thank him for the pointers he has given me tonight. Good night, madam."

When Mr. Bowser opened his eyes and looked around in a stupid way he smelled camphor and saw Mrs. Bowser bending over him.

"W-what is it?" he asked.

"Nothing much, except that you have stopped laughing."

"But what is it, I say?"

"Hush! You picked up Mr. Wilkins for a flint and set out to knock his head off. Yours isn't quite knocked off, but there's a lump on your jaw as big as a quart bowl. Rest yourself for ten minutes, and then the cook and I will see if we can get you downstairs and in bed."

How British Cities Manage Public Utilities

How Birmingham, When Joseph Chamberlain, "Socialist," Was Mayor, Purchased Its Slum District and Made It the Most Valuable Tract of Real Estate in the World

By FREDERICK UPHAM ADAMS

[Copyright, 1934, by Frederick Upham Adams.]

VI.
IN 1875 the most squalid district in England lay like a festering sore adjacent to the business center of Birmingham. It was thus described by Counselor White in an eloquent plea before the town council for improved conditions:

"It is not easy to imagine the dreary association which here after acre in the very heart of the town presents to those who will take the trouble to visit it. Little else is to be seen but bowing roofs, tottering chimneys, tumble down and disused shops, heaps of bricks, broken windows and coarse rough pavements, damp and sloppy. In one case I found a house of only two rooms, about nine feet square and six feet high, and in this house lived a husband, wife and four children. The middle class deplorable conditions of our fellow townsmen are spending their lives, with no bright thing about them and nothing of joy or gladness in their homes."

Joseph Chamberlain was then mayor of Birmingham, and the city had not attained the proud distinction of a metropolis of midland England, nor did that brilliant young man climb toward his present fame. He had indeed marked talents in municipal affairs and was an enthusiastic advocate of public ownership—so much so, in fact, that his political enemies derided him a Socialist. It was due to his efforts and energy that Birmingham had purchased the gas plant and the waterworks from private owners, and the success which followed these purchases gave him a prestige of which he was not slow to take advantage. The desolate tract populated with thousands of miserable persons aroused his sympathy, but he was more than a social reformer; he was one of the foremost business men in Great Britain. He surveyed the field as a general does one of a coming battle. He formulated a plan, one so startling in originality, so radical in its scope and so stupendous in its magnitude that his friends and supporters hesitated when he proposed it to them.

Mr. Chamberlain urged that Birmingham proceed to purchase every foot of land in this contaminated area, and he included in it fifty or more acres practically in the center of the city. He proposed to ignore all existing street lines and to devote a large percentage of the land to broad thoroughfares. He proposed to demolish every house in this district, to lease part of the site to reputable landlords who would erect dwellings under the supervision of the city authorities and to lease the remainder of the land for business purposes. He admitted that for years this investment would impose a burden on the taxpayers, but contended that the end it would prove a splendid investment. More than that, the eradication of the slum area would increase the value of every foot of property in the city.

The future statesman formally introduced the matter to the town council, and, in one of the most masterly speeches of his career, urged its adoption. He claimed that Birmingham could never aspire to the commercial supremacy of its natural territory so long as it permitted thousands of its citizens to live in misery.

"I believe," he said, "that the town of Birmingham, above all, the next generation, will have cause to bless the town council of Birmingham if it carries out this scheme and exercises what I venture to call a sagacious audacity. We know how from time to time upon our vast operations have been undertaken by which large tracts of land have been redeemed from the sea, and what was formerly the sandy bed of the ocean has been converted into smiling fields. I say that no less meritorious and no less necessary is the work which we are undertaking in this inner city by which we hope to wrest from the fell grasp of disease, misery and crime whole populations which would otherwise be abandoned to them. I heard it said the other day that the position of these people was their fault. Their fault? Yes, it is largely their fault if they steal, and when we send them to jail, and if they commit murder we hang them for it. But if the members of this council had been placed under similar conditions from infancy we had grown up in the same way—does any of us suppose that he should have run no risk of being a burglar or the jail? For my part, I have not sufficient confidence in my own inherent goodness to believe that I could make headway in anything but a life of crime. It is no fault of mine that I am a criminal, but I am a criminal because I am a human being."

The Chronometer.
In 1713 the English government offered £10,000, £15,000 or £20,000 to any one discovering a method for determining the longitude at sea within sixty, forty or thirty miles. John Harrison, a carpenter's son, made his first chronometer in 1735 and was sent the next year to Lisbon and back to test it. The trial was successful, but the inventor was awarded only £2,000. He produced other instruments in 1759 and 1769, and finally in 1781 he constructed a chronometer in the form of a watch.

man life in order to see the results of these improvements and to hear the blessings which will be showered on those who have the courage to begin them."

The above is a brief extract from a speech which aroused the staid Birmingham councilors and aldermen to enthusiasm, as by a unanimous vote they endorsed and adopted the plan of their youthful colleague. This was in 1875.

Few men have lived to see so wild a dream come true. As I stood in Corporation street, which traverses what once was the foul center of Birmingham's slum district, I wondered what are Joseph Chamberlain's sensations when he gazes on that magnificent thoroughfare, the finest in Great Britain outside of London. Where the hovels once reeked in filth great marts and business palaces rear their fronts. The district from which respectable persons turned with loathing is now the fashionable shopping district. Delicate fabrics have taken the place of the rags of the pauper. As if Aladdin's magician had waved a wand, the grewsome district has disappeared. I would rather be Joseph Chamberlain and walk up Corporation street, Birmingham, than be able to pay the Russian national debt.

At an expense of $8,500,000 the city purchased about forty-five acres of slums and proceeded to transform an irregular strip having an extreme length of about a mile. Starting at New street, one of the best business thoroughfares, it surveyed a broad road through the center of its new and strange property. Having laid out new streets in every direction, the municipality offered the frontage to those who were willing to build in consideration of seventy-five year leases. There was a demand from powerful interests that the leaseholds be extended to ninety-nine years, but Mr. Chamberlain was firm in his resolve that Birmingham should come into full possession of its reward at the end of the shorter term. He insisted that it would be possible to rent every square foot of the land on the terms specified, and his judgment was accurate. He also predicted that the average annual charge against the taxes would not exceed $30,000. This would meet the interest on the bonds and make up the deficit after allowing for rents and other revenues. In brief, he estimated that the eventual cost of the investment would not exceed $1,500,000.

The scheme has been greatly enlarged since its inception, but when the last payment is made in 1950 Birmingham will own in fee simple the most valuable tract of real estate in the world, and the price paid will fall below that set by the "boy mayor" who has a chance to live to see the partial fruition of his "audacious sagacity." If offered for sale in the open market today the former slum hole would realize $15,000,000. Its improvement did more than any one thing to make Birmingham the "metropolis of the midland counties." It is no exaggeration to assert that the decision of the council of 1875 had the direct effect of doubling the value of every square foot of land in the business district, and it would be impossible to put a money value on the blessings which have come with a lowered death rate, diminished crime, an aroused local pride and the prestige which comes from a great campaign valiantly and successfully pushed to success.

So He Appointed Jones.

"I began to practice law in Dakota in territorial days," said the lawyer from Chicago. "Our judges were sent to us, and some of them didn't know any more about law than they did about the political beliefs of the mound builders. One of them—I'll call him Jones—was so appallingly ignorant that it was a great relief when on the admission of North Dakota to the Union he left the bench and began to practice law. His successor was a man wholly without a sense of humor, and the only good thing he ever said in his life was wholly accidental. A man was brought to trial charged with selling liquor to the Indians. The judge asked him if he had a lawyer to defend him. 'No,' said the man, 'I don't want a lawyer.' 'Well,' said his honor, looking about the room till his eyes rested on his predecessor, 'I'll appoint Judge Jones to defend him.'"—Washington Post.

BLACK BEAN SOUP.—One pint black beans, two quarts cold water, one small onion, two teaspoonfuls salt, one teaspoonful pepper, one-quarter teaspoonful cayenne, one teaspoonful mustard, one tablespoonful flour, two tablespoonfuls butter, one lemon, two hard-boiled eggs. Soak the beans overnight. In the morning pour off the water and put on to boil in four quarts of cold water. Simmer two hours, or until soft. Rub through a strainer and thicken. Cut the lemon and eggs into thin slices and pour hot soup over them.

The Sleep of Plants.

The leaves of the common clover give a good example of what Linnaeus called the sleep of plants. At sunset the two side leaflets of each set of three bend forward until their edges nearly meet, when the middle leaflet droops downward to touch them and completes the picture of repose.

Some of the bean family assume as perfect postures of rest. The wistaria hangs the end and central leaflet of each cluster directly downward, pointing to the earth, while the side leaflets drop in double rows, back to back. The leaves of the scarlet runner have a similar habit. The willow foliage twists into a position that is almost vertical, and the leaves of the vine are raised slightly of their edges and depressed toward the center.

HUNGARIAN CHICKEN.—Put one heaped tablespoonful of butter or dripping in a light stewpan; add two good sized onions sliced thin. When slightly brown add half a teaspoonful of paprika and mix well and let them brown. Then add the cut up chicken, salt and pepper. Brown well, turning often. Then add stock or water and stew till tender. Take out meat to a hot platter and add to it a gravy of a half cup or more of thick sour cream. Scald, but do not let it boil; pour over the chicken and serve at once.

Grief and White Hair.

The mustaches of Henry III. of Navarre are reported to have become partially white in a few hours after hearing of the concession of the edict of Nemours. The hair of an English banker, owing to reverses in business, became gray in three days, according to the Encyclopedia Metropolitana. According to the same authority, a man about forty years old, who at his marriage had a dark head of hair, "on his return from his wedding trip had his hair turn so completely snow white, even to his eyebrows, that his friends almost doubted his identity."

Japanese Ladies and Suicide.

While Japanese ladies never committed harakiri, the honorable equivalent was death by a stab in the neck from her own dirk, a weapon which she generally carried in her girdle to be used in time of need.

Where a Roman dame would in ancient times have plunged her dagger into her own heart, a Japanese heroine preferred to thrust the weapon into her neck, and there is no record of either male or female in Japan ending existence in the fashion that is so often depicted in western novels and less frequently perhaps in real life.—Nineteenth Century.

NEW YORK FASHIONS

Pattern For Girl's Russian Dress Designed by Martha Dean

A unique collar lends distinction to the little frock here depicted. Russian dresses are almost universally worn, but there are Russian dresses and Russian dresses, and all styles are not so well liked or as becoming as others. In the model shown we have quite the newest idea in cut of dress, and the fanciful collar is sure to win favor because of its excellent lines. As is shown, the collar continues as a facing. This diagonal or crossed over effect is very becoming to most childish figures, and the pointed effect facing is a feature that aids in giving "figure" to the undeveloped little bodies. The model is not only suitable for dresses for Sunday-go-to-meeting wear, but develops as charmingly as wash goods.

Japanese Field Marshal Says Russian Soldiers Are Brave---Refuses to Discuss Peace Rumor.

Paris Diplomats Say Japan Will Demand That Russia Build No More Warships For Term of Years--Tokyo To Celebrate Fall of Mukden.

[By Cable to The Age.]

Tokyo, March 27.—A dispatch from Yinkow says:

Marquis Oyama gave his first interview since coming into the field. He refused to discuss the probability of peace. "I am only a soldier," he said, "not a politician. The Japanese government will arrange terms of peace when the time comes. We were forced to fight this war in the interests of international peace and for the safety of our country. Personally, I have a high regard for the Russians. They are soldiers. The officers and men are brave and able and have fought well. But our army, both soldiers and officers, have performed their duty as Japan knew they would. I was minister of war for Japan for 16 years, during which time conscription laws were passed. I have closely watched the making of the Japanese army, which has proved what I say, that the officers and the men have fulfilled every hope, as I believed they would in the older days, when the Japanese

LIFE OF UNSELFISHNESS COMES TO A PEACEFUL CLOSE

Miss Margaret Peoples, a True Christian And Model Example of Womanhood, Called by Death.

SERVICES TOMORROW

After several weeks of suffering death came to the relief of Miss Margaret Peoples about seven o'clock Sunday evening. Its coming marked the passing of a beautiful christian life.

Miss Peoples was born in Ireland nearly sixty-six years ago but when still a child came to this country and lived for years at Willow Brook coming to Coshocton about four years ago to make her home with her niece, Mrs. Davis, of South Third street.

She was originally a Presbyterian but about eight years ago withdrew her membership in that church to unite with the Christian church. Her life was a beautiful one, an inspiring example for all with whom she came in contact and so full of unselfishness and genuine christian charity that her memory will always be a happy one.

The funeral services will be conducted from Mrs. Davis' home Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock, Dr. Clark, of the First M. E. church and Rev. J. W. Wright of Willow Brook being in charge of the services. Interment will be made at South Lawn cemetery.

In addition to Mrs. Davis Miss Peoples left three nephews, Jesse Smith, of this city, Frank Whittemore of Warsaw and Will Whittemore of Keene to mourn her death.

To Organize Ball Team.
The members of the Criterion club will have a meeting in their club room Tuesday evening at 7:30 to organize a base ball team. All the members are urged to attend.

Barbers' Meeting.
The regular meeting of the Barbers' union will be held tomorrow evening

Variety Store Closed Up Saturday Evening by Cleveland Man.

The Liabilities Are Estimated At $2,000, And Assets At $700.

Just after the rush of business was over Saturday evening between nine and ten o'clock Sheriff Browning walked into the Swan Variety store in the Schaich building on Main street, with a judgment for $522.90, and levied on the stock of goods.

The judgment was taken by Attorney J. C. Daugherty in New Philadelphia against Anna E. Riley, proprietor of the store, on a note owned by Samuel Newman, a Cleveland attorney. Judge Roche is also attorney for Mr. Newman. It develops that Miss Riley has been the owner of the store although she left Coshocton a few months ago leaving the store under the management of B. B. Hurford.

For some time it has been thought by many that the store was not doing business large enough to place it on a firm financial basis. It is understood Miss Riley was drawing fifty-five dollars per month and Mr. Hurford, as manager, received the same amount. Forty-five dollars per month was paid as rent. One month's rent is due Mr. Schaich.

Mr. Newman, who held the largest claim, was for twelve years associated with Ex-Mayor McKissen in Cleveland. Other claims running from ten dollars to $300 will make the total liabilities exceed $2000. One of the attorneys states that the stock of goods in the store is probably worth about $700.

To be sure Mr. Newman's judgment comes ahead of all others but in case bankruptcy proceedings should be resorted to all the creditors would be placed on the same level and would receive a certain per cent. It has been suggested that the stock of goods might simply be sold and the proceeds divided among the creditors.

Mr. Hurford left Sunday for Cleveland. Mr. Zill, who has been employed as assistant, will remain here about a week, after which he expects to secure employment in Cleveland.

Warsaw Chief of Police Severely Injured By Would-Be Assassin's Bomb

Police Station Also The Scene of An Outrage, Six Men Being Injured in The Explosion---Bomb Thrower Escapes After Killing Policeman.

[By Cable to The Age.]

Warsaw, Poland, March 27.—Baron Von Nolken, chief of police of Warsaw, was injured seriously by the explosion of a bomb which was thrown into his carriage.

Revolutionists had planned a double assault. Shortly before the tragedy an elegantly dressed man went to the police station at Praga, a large suburb of Warsaw, on the other side of the Vistula, and threw a bomb into a room of the station, wounding seven persons, two of them dangerously. The man started to run away, but was caught by the captain of the station after the assassin had shot a policeman. He was found to be a Jew. He had been wounded. A telephone message was immediately sent to Baron Von Nolken at the city hall informing him of the outrage. Baron Von Nolken, accompanied by a police official, took a carriage and started immediately for Praga. When passing the castle, where the governor general resides, a man standing on the pavement threw a bomb at the carriage. Baron Von Nolken, who was sitting on the side nearest the assailant, received the full charge of the bomb, while his companion escaped unhurt. The coachman was thrown from the box and the carriage was smashed. Baron Von Nolken was removed to the city hall and doctors were summoned, who found he had received injuries on the head, neck, arm and leg, which are believed to be of a serious nature. Meanwhile the police officials accompanying Baron Von Nolken saw the bombthrower fleeing and pursued and caught up with him, but the criminal proved the stronger and tore himself away. Another policeman fired twice after him, without result. Half an hour later a policeman was found dead in Sowia street. The police think the assassin shot to escape arrest. A girl who was passing the spot when the bomb was thrown was wounded by splinters and had to be taken to the hospital.

Merchants Support Liberals.

St. Petersburg, March 27.—A very significant and important feature in connection with the political situation is the fact that the disaster and ruin with which trade and industry are threatened is forcing the merchant and commercial classes of the big cities into politics. Heretofore as a matter of business they have carefully refrained from meddling in the liberal movement, but the situation is now so serious that they feel compelled to define their attitude, and everywhere they are pronouncing in favor of the liberal demands for the cessation of the war and for a constitution. M. Morosoff, the Moscow millionaire, who is known as "the Russian cotton king," realizing the power of united action, has called a private meeting of leading men in the industrial life of Russia to make representations to the government. Considering the important part played by the bourgeois in revolutions in other countries, the "intellectuals" regard the active support of the merchant class as the greatest victory they can achieve in the struggle they are waging.

Revolutionary Movement.

Warsaw, March 27.—A revolutionary movement of considerable proportions is making itself manifest in connection with the industrial disturbances in the region around Siedlce, Bielsk, Vlodslavsk, Rodin and Lukow, south and southeast of Warsaw. The country has been flooded with proclamations of foreign and local origin calling for a rising in Poland and with revolutionary songs and addresses, the latter demanding the use of the Polish language in all the schools, administrative offices and courts.

Accepted Bribes.

Moscow, March 27.—A libel suit brought by the chief of the military hospital here against a lawyer has disclosed a big scandal. The lawyer charged that medical men during the mobilization accepted bribes from reservists who desired to escape service, and the chief of the military hospital sued for slander. The lawyer pleaded the truth of the charges. The trial has not been finished.

Jews Alarmed.

Kishineff, March 27.—Jews here are greatly alarmed over a renewal of anti-Semitic agitation. The governor is taking energetic measures to prevent racial collisions.

ERNEST SMITH BECOMES SUPERINTENDENT OF GAS CO.

H. G. Owens who has been superintendent of the Coshocton Gas company for the past two years has tendered his resignation to take effect the first of May and the vacancy will be filled by Ernest Smith who at present is the secretary of the company. Mr. Owens expects to leave soon after the first of May for Colorado where he will give his personal attention to his large mining interests. Mrs. Owens and Miss Owens will leave the first week in April for Indiana where they will visit relatives before going on west with Mrs. Owens.

C. H. Wingate, the foreman of the fitters has also tendered his resignation and he and Mrs. Wingate will leave soon for Hartford City, Indiana, where they will visit for a time before going on to the Pacific coast where Mr. Wingate expects to engage in business either in Spokane or Seattle.

Mr. Owens and his family and Mr. and Mrs. Wingate have made many warm friends during their residence in Coshocton and their departure is deeply regretted.

TREASURER CASE IS DECLARED INNOCENT

[By Telegraph to The Age.]
Pomeroy, O., March 27.—County Treasurer T. J. Chase, charged with the embezzlement of county funds to the amount of $14,545, was found not guilty by the jury after 11 hours' deliberation. The trial grew out of the robbery of the county treasury last September of the amount which Chase was charged in the indictment with having embezzled. Chase claimed he was held up by two masked men who, after looting the money vault of all available cash, locked him in the vault and escaped. Chase was liberated by his daughter, who came into the office after the robbery. The arrest and indictment of Chase on the charge of embezzlement followed the robbery. His father-in-law, Ransom Macey, was indicted as an accomplice, and when the jury returned a verdict of guilty, the Chase

Inexperienced Girl Is Caught Forging Signature To a Check

T. L. Montgomery, cashier at the Coshocton National bank, had a peculiar experience with an amateur criminal Monday morning. A Coshocton girl committed forgery an offense punishable under the laws of Ohio with imprisonment in the penitentiary. It was shortly after the bank had opened for business when a girl perhaps eighteen years of age stepped into the bank and presented to the cashier for payment a check for six dollars. The check was issued by E. H. Nicholas, as secretary of the Coshocton, Cambridge and Northern pled that it was and was informed that it would be necessary for her to indorse it on the back. The color began to leave the girl's face and she commenced biting her finger nails nervously. Mr. Montgomery pointed to the pen and ink at the desk nearby and the girl, by this time frightened very perceptibly, signed the check "Emma K. Williams" and handed it back through the window. But the writing was very illegible and by this time Mr. Montgomery's suspicions were thoroughly aroused. The girl had told him that her mother or had done some work for the street railway company but she

Nicholas and have him come down and identify you." The girl waited just outside the bank although Mr. Montgomery feared she was going to make her escape. The circumstances were explained to Mr. Nicholas and in a few minutes he came with his stenographer, Miss Emma Williams and the strange girl followed them. He did not know the young lady who had presented the check but he had issued the check to Miss Williams, who had been on the street, Saturday night. This time the strange girl looked at the check and the words "Emma K. Williams" and the words "Coshocton, Cambridge and Northern

OPPORTUNITY: THE GREAT STIMULUS OF OUR LIFE

Four Types of Men at Whose Threshold Opportunity Knocks.

Rev. Hamilton of the Presbyterian church preached an excellent sermon on Sunday evening taking his text from Galatians 6:10: "As we have opportunity therefore let us do good to all men."

He said in part that the very word opportunity is tedious to some, that many are content to remain in the dog trot of existence, in fact prefer remaining in that condition to arousing themselves to the possibility of making the most of the opportunities which surround them. Remaining in such a condition of apathy is an indication of stultification.

Opportunity is the great stimulus of life, it keeps people young, it is the word of youth but if we want to remain indifferent the word means nothing. So many people feel that there is nothing special for them to do; they fail to recognize their opportunities. So many are satisfied with an easy, care free existence that they do not even know when opportunity knocks at their door.

There are four types of people to whom opportunity comes.

The first is the man who murders his opportunities. Saul is the best scriptural example beginning life as he did, a farm boy and rising to the eminence of king he thought no more of his duty or his wonderful opportunities but only of his rights.

The second type is the man who as just missed his opportunity. The Macabber of 1741. The individual of this kind was born a day too late and dies trying to catch up. He has the habit of distraction, he never concentrates his efforts, and consequently never succeeds. The end of the life of such a person is full of tragedy, no strength is developed and all their days are wasted in trifling. They may mean well but they are incapable of making a decision along the right line and living up to it faithfully and consequently never succeed.

The third type is the man who grasps his opportunity and makes the most of it - he is the successful man. Concentration, decision and action lead him to success.

The fourth class and the noblest of all is the man who creates opportunity. The man has been disappointed and discouraged but rises to higher things because of them. Failure only makes him the more determined to succeed. We must make success out of our mistakes and be the more determined to grasp the present opportunities and make the most of them. Out of our failures we can make the best and noblest kind of characters and to do that we must have faith in God and ourselves. We must leave the past with him and make the most of our future. "Our opportunity in church life today if we could only see it would make us more active and useful and helpful. If we could learn as Christians to grasp the opportunity as the successful business man does. We are called to do good in this world, to accomplish things for God's glory."

were open to divine influences. Now is an opportunity which may never return again—we may neglect it and go on drifting but now while there is time let us dedicate it to real life and usefulness.

Amusements

"York State Folks." The great rural success "York State Folks" which comes to the Sixth Street Theatre next Thursday evening, is a picture of life in a remote village—the "David Harrow" country where Mr. Sidman was born. It is an idyllic picture he has painted with skill. There is plenty of comedy and plain unadorned simplicity in the painting but the play is also a serious side. One wonders after he has reached the sidewalk why he became so thoroughly interested in the very ordinary and very natural troubles growing out of a little disagreement between two old men. That he realizes that he has seen an excellent combination (part, the art of the playwright and the art of the actor, that has made these simple everyday affairs of such absorbing interest.

There are no "bad" characters in the play. There is no villain. There is not even a man or woman with low motives. The people are just such people as are to be met in a respectable Eastern village. Mr. Sidman did not find it necessary to make his characters ciphers one another or plot against one another for personal aggrandizement in order to furnish a play. He did a very much simpler thing. A very reasonable mistake was made and out of this grew others which involved, to a greater or less degree, practically every character in the cast. None of the women have anything to hide from the world and every character is

Drama's Season Wanes

Mary Mannering In "Nancy Stair," by Paul M. Potter—Play Is Not a Success --- Pauline Frederick and Other Timely Topics.

(From Our New York Dramatic Correspondent)

Mary Mannering is now at the Criterion theatre in a new romantic drama, "Nancy Stair," by Paul M. Potter, which is a dramatization of Elinor MacCartney Lane's novel of the same name. The play is prophetic in that Nancy goes downstairs to obscurity hand in hand with the waning theatrical season. The end of the season and of "Nancy Stair" and the beginning of welcome summer are in sight.

The play is poorly constructed, woefully so, and is only made a possibility through the charm and grace of Miss Mannering, who is personally acceptable in the production.

Robert Burns is resurrected to appear in the play, which has much to do with the famous Scotch poet. His impersonator, T. Daniel Frawley, is absolutely incapable of doing justice to the role and adds considerable unnecessary weariness to the evening.

"Nancy Stair" is, of course, played by Miss Mannering. The chief supporting role, that of Danvers MacGregor, falls to the lot of Robert Lorraine. MacGregor is accused of murder, of the killing of the Duke of Bathwick. In the climax of the play, a trial scene, MacGregor is acquitted. He is the lover of Nancy and eventually marries her, as is the stage custom.

"Nancy Stair" as a play lacks almost everything requisite for a successful production. It won't do, and it is a pity that talented Miss Mannering should be slaughtered to make a Potter holiday.

Pauline Frederick.

Well informed wanderers along the Rialto in New York, who are prone to make prophecies as to the probable future of newcomers to the stage, are saying flattering things of Pauline Frederick, the Boston society girl who is playing a small part in support of Lew Fields in "It Happened in Nordland" at his new theatre. Miss Frederick has only a "bit," but it serves to show her ability, for it is straight dramatic work against Mr. Fields' eccentric comedy, a very difficult situation to play effectively.

Miss Frederick has had less than three seasons' experience. She comes from a well known Boston family and went on the stage determined to make a career for herself. She began as a chorus girl in "The Rogers Brothers in Harvard" three years ago and soon found herself the understudy for the two principal women. Last season she played the fairy queen, Titania, and Joy in "A Princess of Kensington," but had to retire in December because of illness which prevented her from playing again till she joined Lew Fields' company in September as Miss Hicks, first secretary of the American legation to Nordland.

Young, but Capable.

Miss Frederick is a young but capable, handsome woman, twenty years of age. She is not only endowed with unusual dramatic ability, but she possesses a powerful and carefully cultivated enterprise counts frontage too expensive, so the "single entrance" plan has been adopted.

"The theater proper occupies the interior of a plot of ground, the street frontage being devoted to other purposes, with one or perhaps two passages reserved for entrances. New York boasts several theaters typical of this scheme, as do almost all our larger cities, but the significance of this statement is that they constitute the newest and most costly of our buildings. A writer has aptly described the decorative schemes of the New Amsterdam, the Empire and other New York playhouses. But what of the material, the practical side of these theaters? Compare the single entrance, the higgledy street frontage, with the majestic setting, the splendid isolation, of a European opera house."

MORE TRACKS TO REBEL.

Winn Says Latonia and Memphis Will Soon Join New Turf Body.

Both Latonia and Memphis are destined to join the American Turf association soon, according to Matt J. Winn, president of the new turf body backed by Ed Corrigan. He asserts that a tentative agreement to this effect is already in existence.

"There is an understanding between the Nashville and Memphis clubs that the latter is to join our forces as soon as Latonia's attitude is settled," said Mr. Winn recently. "The litigation over the Cincinnati course is still pending, but it will probably be settled within a few weeks. It is expected that Latonia will then be free to join the American Turf association. When that happens, Memphis will surely follow suit.

"To my mind this will mean the end of the Western Jockey club. Their circuit would then consist only of the graduate tracks at St. Louis, Harlem, Oaklawn and the Crescent City club's course at New Orleans. Under these circumstances I think I am justified in predicting that the new body is sure to be a huge success."

Widener's Steeplechase Plans.

Joseph E. Widener of Philadelphia, one of the big factors in steeplechasing in this country, will have a number of French steeplechasers in the lot that will carry his colors the coming season unless his present plans fall through. J. Howard Lewis, Jr., manager of Mr. Widener's stable, is now in France looking the field over with a view to making a number of purchases. It is highly probable that Mr. Lewis will acquire a team of French steeplechasers.

MARY MANNERING.

PAULINE FREDERICK.

rated high soprano voice with a range of three complete octaves. She has sung but little in public, not singing at all in Mr. Fields' company, and will not make her formal public appearance as a singer till next season. It is predicted that her ability as both actress and singer will rapidly advance her should the opportunity be afforded her to display her talent. Young women of her attractive personality who possess genuine dramatic and vocal talent seem to be rare on the American stage at this time.

Paying Investments.

Theatrical investments pay big dividends when the investors are sufficient. It is likely to be a substantial one.

is not too much in the case of a hit of this nature, the total receipts from the presentation are seen to be no less than $2,000,000.

Mrs. Fiske's Season.

Mrs. Fiske and the Manhattan company have begun the last weeks of their season at the Manhattan theater. "Leah Kleschna" has been so successful that its run might be continued into the summer, but contracts in other cities, made early in the season, make necessary the termination of the engagement here. The play will have been acted for eighteen weeks before it leaves New York, and Mrs. Fiske and the Manhattan company will have had an eight months' continuous season here.

The Perfect Theater.

"If one should attempt to describe the perfect theater," says J. E. O. Pridmore, an architect, "it is just as apparent as ever that such must be the result of an ideal society. And in one particular the ancients certainly had an advantage over us. Whereas their buildings were situated and designed for the benefit of the people, today it is the box office which must be accommodated, for, while in classic and mediaeval times the funds were provided by the state, it is impossible under private enterprise to equal the liberal provisions which an undertaking for profit forbids.

"A well known financier, approached quite recently to endow a model theater, replied, 'There is only one successful endowment for a theater, and that is through the box office.' This sentiment is wrong, because the public often errs in its support and always benefits by education. There is perhaps no more worthy field for the philanthropist than the endowment of splendid theaters. We know that the Greeks set apart their finest site for the theater, and this practice prevailed for many centuries. In our day pri-

COOPERDALE STORE CHANGES HANDS

An important business change has taken place at Cooperdale, T. P. Perkins having sold all of his property, including store, store building and residence, to J. Lane Dickerson, who has been instructor in bookkeeping and shorthand at West Lafayette college.

Mr. Dickerson has been a resident of that community all his life where he stands in high esteem and will no doubt meet with merited success in the business venture.

Mr. Perkins will locate elsewhere but has not yet consummated his plans. He is a fine business man and an excellent gentleman, and the best wishes of a host of friends will follow him wherever he goes.

RAVAGED BY FIRE.
Freight Depot of a Brewing Plant Totally Destroyed.
St. Louis, March 27.—The freight depot of the Anheuser-Busch Brewing association, located in the center of its immense freight yards in the southern part of the city, was totally destroyed by fire, together with 17 refrigerator cars, the property of the St. Louis Refrigerating Car company, of which Adolphus Busch is the president. The total loss is estimated at $125,000. Ten minutes after the flames were discovered in the southwest corner of the building, among several hundred bales of packing hay, the building was a mass of fire, and 30 minutes later the roof fell in, throwing sparks high into the air.

Schooldays

...By BRACEBRIDGE HEMYNG

CHAPTER.
MR. MOLE saw old Simon bring Fisher up to the school and from his lips heard an account of the accident. Going up to Hunston after tea he said, "You have done a brave act, though you were wrong in taking Fisher on the river, because he cannot swim."

"Yes, sir, I was wrong there, but he begged so hard to go," answered Hunston.

"Well, I shall report your conduct to Mr. Crawcour, and he will no doubt reward you in some fitting manner for your bravery."

"Thank you, sir," said Hunston, whose cheeks flushed either with pleasure or shame at the deception he was practicing.

During the whole of the evening he watched Harkaway carefully. One word from Jack would scatter his carefully built edifice to the winds. Fisher was very weak. The shock to his system had been great, and the doctor who was called in had recommended that he should be moved to a room by himself, as any noise might be prejudicial to his health. So in Hunston's dormitory a bed was left vacant.

As soon as the boys were got off to bed Mr. Mole looked over the notes he had made in his pocketbook against certain boys of whom he had to complain. Knocking at the principal's door, the senior master was told to come in, which he did. Mrs. Crawcour was reclining on the sofa, covered with a thin shawl. She did not move when Mr. Mole entered. Her husband was sitting at a table on which were a box of cigars and a decanter of sherry. He appeared to be in an excellent temper.

"Ah, Mole!" he said. "Is it you come to make your report? That's right. Sit down and have a glass of wine—sherry. There are port and claret, too, in the chiffonier."

"Thank you, sir. Sherry will do," replied Mr. Mole.

"Now, what is it? Anything fresh?"

"I have to complain of Harkaway," replied Mr. Mole.

At the mention of this name Mrs. Crawcour slightly turned her head, as if disposing herself to listen to what was coming.

"Tell me about him. I have not seen much of him. He is a mischievous boy," Mr. Crawcour observed, thinking of the tricks which had been played upon him when he arrived at the villa at Inghate.

"I had occasion to tell him to do some writing this afternoon. He did not do it, alleging that he had the cramp in his hand. I accepted the excuse, but almost directly afterward found him writing a letter for one of his schoolfellows."

"That is bad. Send him up to be caned tomorrow morning. The young idea is warped. It must be carefully trained. Physical pain is the best doctor in such a case. We will call in Dr. Cane, whose remedies are infallible."

"Now I have the pleasing task of recommending Hunston for reward."

"What has he done?"

"Fisher, who cannot swim, begged to be taken out in a boat. Hunston foolishly took him. Through Fisher's folly the boat upset, and Hunston, at the risk of his own life, gallantly rescued his drowning companion, diving three times for him."

"Dear me! That is excellent. The poor lad might have been drowned. What a thing that would have been for the school! We must be more careful about letting boys go on the water. However, in consideration of Hunston's gallant conduct we will overlook the offense of taking Fisher on the river. He shall be called up before the whole school tomorrow morning, complimented and rewarded with a prize book in which the history of the affair shall be written. Will that do, eh?"

"It is just what I should have suggested myself," replied Mr. Mole.

Suddenly Mrs. Crawcour rose up and put the shawl over her shoulders.

"I thought you were asleep, my dear," said her husband.

"I have not been," she replied, adding: "Mr. Mole, will you oblige me by resuming your seat for a few minutes? I do not wish that any injustice should be done, but you have misrepresented facts."

"Not willingly, I hope, ma'am."

"Oh, no. I acquit you of all intention of that. Allow me, however, to set you right on an important matter."

"How on earth, my dear, can you know anything about such a thing as a boy having cramp in his hand?" asked Mr. Crawcour.

"That I do not profess to know anything about."

"Or an accident on a river?"

"Because of the latter I was an eyewitness," replied Mrs. Crawcour. The principal and the senior master regarded her with undisguised astonishment.

Mrs. Crawcour proceeded to relate to her husband and Mr. Mole what she had seen by the water side. She had been for a walk in the fields, and, hidden by the protecting shade of a thicket, beheld the accident to the boat, witnessing with horror the sinking of Fisher. Indeed she was so paralyzed with fear that she was unable to cry out. When Harkaway appeared upon the scene and dived for the unfortunate boy, her heart almost stood still, and it was only when his body was recovered and she saw he was safe that her power of speech returned to her and she ejaculated a fervid "Thank Heaven!"

This was the exclamation which Jack had fancied he heard, but which had been set down by Hunston to the sound of the wind among the leaves of the trees. So thoroughly did she put Hunston in the wrong and show that to Jack alone was due the credit of saving a boy's life that Mr. Crawcour was obliged to admit that he was on the eve of committing an injustice.

"However," he remarked, "I will put everything right tomorrow, and as Harkaway employed his time so well I think, Mr. Mole, we may let him off this time for not doing the imposition you set him."

"I fully concur in that opinion, sir," answered the senior master.

"Why, my dear," said Mr. Crawcour to his wife, "did you not disclose these facts which have just come to light on your return home?"

"Because I thought the boys would themselves give a correct account of the affair, and you know that I take so little interest in the boys and detest the life of a schoolmaster's wife so much that the interest of the moment passed away, and I did not think of the matter again until I heard Mr. Mole making his report to you."

"Ah, well, my love," he remarked, "we cannot all do as we like in this weary world." Mr. Mole took his leave.

Mr. Crawcour rarely, if ever, attended early morning school. He made his appearance at the 10 o'clock gathering of the boys, sometimes assisting one master, then another, in hearing the various classes repeat their lessons, at others sitting at his desk and looking sharply round him to keep order.

When he took his place as usual the next morning, he struck his desk loudly with a ruler.

"Hunston!" he exclaimed. "Is Hunston here?"

"Yes, sir," replied the latter.

"Come forward."

"You went on the water yesterday knowing you could not swim, thereby breaking one of the rules I have formed for the safety of my boys," began Mr. Crawcour. "You took with you a younger boy, who is now suffering from an immersion which resulted from an accident. This boy Fisher couldn't swim, and you knew it."

Hunston was silent.

"In addition to this, you spread a report that you had saved Fisher's life, knowing the statement to be false."

"Please, sir, I—"

"Don't aggravate your offense by adding one lie to another," interrupted Mr. Crawcour; then, raising his voice, he said, "Harkaway, come forward."

Jack did so.

"After you had so gallantly rescued Fisher from a watery grave," Mr. Crawcour went on, "what induced you to hide your light under a bushel and let this boy take all the credit to himself?"

"I did not know he was going to do so, sir," answered Jack.

"Why were you silent? You must have heard what was said in the school."

"Yes, sir, but I had no business out, having been kept in by Mr. Mole. I thought I should be punished, and Hunston suggested that if I said nothing about the boat accident and pretended I had the cramp in my hand Mr. Mole would let me off. I gave Hunston my promise, and how you have got at the truth I don't know."

"There are channels of intelligence open to me which none of you know," the principal replied in a severe tone, "and this will be a lesson to all of you not to attempt to deceive me. In order to show you my appreciation of your conduct, Harkaway, I shall apply to the Royal Humane society for their medal for you, and if they do not think fit to bestow it upon you I will have one specially made."

At this there was a loud cheer, the boys crying, "Hurrah!" and "Bravo, Harkaway!" and those of his own immediate circle, "Well done, Jack!"

"Silence!" thundered the principal. The noise was instantly hushed.

"At the same time," said Mr. Crawcour, "I see no reason to remit the punishment which you shirked. Discipline must be kept up. You will do the task and hand it in to Mr. Mole before you are again permitted to take recreation. After that you will repeat the task for my satisfaction, as I must show my sense of displeasure at your boldness in going out to play when strictly ordered to remain indoors. About the subterfuge of the cramp in your hand I shall say nothing, as it was suggested to you by a greater culprit. Go to your seat."

Jack went away much pleased to get off so easily.

It was now Hunston's turn.

"You, Hunston, are now in Mr. Pumphreys' fourth class," Mr. Crawcour continued. "I shall disgrace you by turning you down into the second, where you will be among the little boys Mr. Mole."

Paine's Celery Compound

Makes Nerve Force

Nerve Force rules the world.
Health—the satisfaction of living,—is the right of every man and woman born into the world.

Health is a question of keeping all the organs of the body working together in fine, smooth, harmony.

The force that rules them all—that makes them work as nature meant and makes them keep in harmony—is Nerve Force.

Without Nerve Force there can be no health at all—no success—no joy in living.

The center of life is in the nerves.

The real root of health or sickness is found in the condition of the nerves.

Neglect the nerves and they will make you feel this neglect in many ways, they control all of the organs of the body and must be kept healthy and strong to do their work properly,—tired nerves cannot keep the organs of the body working in that harmony which is essential to real health.

This is why Paine's Celery Compound is able to bring health in so many different forms. Paine's Celery Compound feeds and nourishes the nerves. It makes new Nerve Force. It makes pure, rich blood, a clean active liver, a stomach that acts quietly and strongly upon all the food that is given to it, bowels that throw away promptly and surely all the ashes from life's engine room.

It makes the heart beat true and evenly, it makes the brain clear and vigorous.

The Nerve Force does this all, and Paine's Celery Compound makes the Nerve Force.

Best of all it makes that buoyant life-spirit, the thrill of health, that is the secret of happiness and the keynote of individual success.

This is the work of Paine's Celery Compound. It is the most celebrated nerve vitalizer and tonic in the world.

We give the testimony of many individual cases, simply that you may know their experience in their own words.

"I am a man of more than 60 years, and for the past 20 years I was a great sufferer with acute stomach trouble and rheumatism. I tried a number of specialists, but their efforts were unavailing and I felt as though life was not worth living, and I had given up all hope of being a well man again. My wife, who also had stomach trouble, at the suggestion of a friend, tried two bottles of Paine's Celery Compound and was fully restored to health. She then encouraged me to try the same medicine; I did so, and now I am a sound and well man, able to work every day. I bless my good wife every day for my good health, as she got me to take Paine's Celery Compound, in my opinion the greatest medicine ever given to the world for nervousness, stomach trouble, rheumatism and kindred ailments. Yours very truly,"—Martin Baldwin, 610 North 10th St., St. Joseph, Mo. Feb. 25, 1904.

Doctors know and value this prescription and make constant use of it in their practice.

Its effect is almost instantaneous—the nourishment and vigor given to the nerve system by Paine's Celery Compound is felt at once.

The patient feels this at once and gains confidence by it.

The Nerve Force begins at once to make each organ of the body do the work that nature expects of it.

Two days' treatment with Paine's Celery Compound will prove its marvelous power.

Remember this,—Paine's Celery Compound is the prescription of one of the most famous physicians this country has ever known, Prof. E. E. Phelps, of Dartmouth University, and all reputable druggists sell and recommend it.

WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO.
BURLINGTON, VERMONT.

I shall publicly cane you before the whole school."

Then he beckoned to Collinson, the head of the school, who proceeded to "horse" the offender. Hunston was made to get on a form and climb therefrom to Collinson's back, putting his arms round his neck, which Collinson held firmly, seizing him by the wrists. Mr. Crawcour mounted a small table so as to have more command over the boy's back and proceeded to cane him. A shower of blows descended faster and faster over his back and legs. Hunston roared lustily.

The chastisement was an exemplary one, for the principal did not leave off until the cane fell from his hand with sheer exhaustion. Hunston, unheeded, limped back to his place, vowing a bitter vengeance against Jack Harkaway.

How to Insure Universal Peace
By Captain RICHMOND P. HOBSON, U. S. N., Retired

THE war in the orient continues to disturb the peaceful conditions of commerce and is causing a drift toward a GENERAL war.

Therefore, in the interest of peace, to organize the peace forces in America AND IN THE WORLD, and thereby stem the rising tide of war, preventing the spread of the existing war and bringing it to the speediest practicable conclusion, honorable to all, all arbitration treaties negotiated between the United States and other nations should be SPEEDILY ratified. Additional arbitration treaties should be negotiated by the United States, and the present ones SHOULD BE EXTENDED in their scope as far and as speedily as practicable.

AS SOON AS PRACTICABLE THE UNITED STATES SHOULD BRING ABOUT A TRIPLE PEACE COMPACT OR ARBITRATION TREATY AND FORM THE NUCLEUS FOR A PEACE UNION AMONG THE NATIONS.

The United States should continue to urge the convening of the second Hague conference and should urge the establishment of an international parliament and the other machinery necessary to perfect an international organization of peace and should project into the law of nations the principle that WAR HAS BECOME A GENERAL MATTER and is no longer a local affair, and, all commercial nations being interested, the question of a resort to war should no longer be settled offhand by two nations in passion, but should pass first through a council of the nations.

The United States should take a steadfast stand against any move to extend the operations of the present war farther into the empire of China or any move toward the seizure of China by any power or combination of powers since such action would violate our treaty rights and put in jeopardy our vast commercial interests in that great market AND WOULD ENDANGER THE PEACE OF THE WORLD.

In order to give effect to these peace efforts and build up a bulwark of peace in America, the one great nation of peace, FREE FROM INHERITED HATRED, the blood relation of all nations, the embodiment of the new era of industrialism, built upon peace and justice, the United States, in the sacred cause of enduring peace, should speedily increase its NAVAL strength.

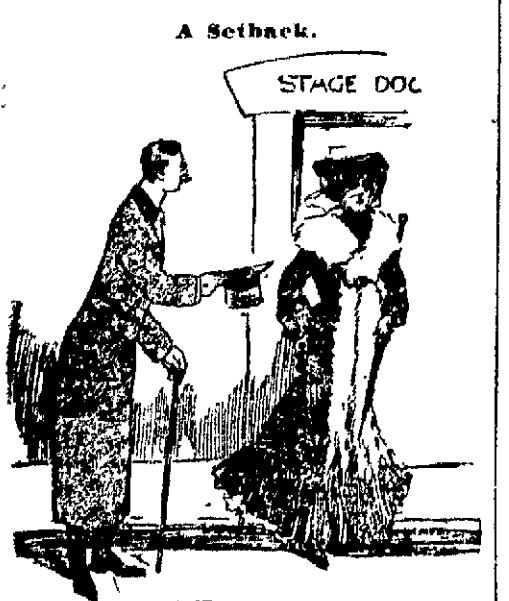

At this critical juncture, where the war in the orient has caused a grouping of the nations of Europe THAT OVERTURNS THE BALANCE OF POWER, giving a preponderance to the side of the nations that would seize China and precipitate a world war in order to restore the balance on the side of peace and prevent militarism from seizing the yellow race with which to perpetuate its reign of war and conquest in order thus to hold the peace of the world and permit the great economic and moral forces to work out the progress of civilization at this juncture, when the poise is so delicate that war or peace with all their possible consequences may hinge upon AMERICA'S CONDITION OF PREPARATION, the United States should hasten with all dispatch the building of new vessels AND THE COMPLETION OF VESSELS NOW BUILDING.

Granted New Trials.

Frankfort, Ky., March 27. — Curtis Jett of Breathitt, who was convicted in Harrison county of murdering James Cockrill and J. B. Marcum, receiving a death sentence for one and life imprisonment for the other, was given a new trial by the Kentucky court of appeals on his death sentence conviction. The new trial was granted because the court below allowed J. L. McCoy to tell what John Patrick said about seeing Jett at the moment of the shooting, and because under the peculiar circumstances in Harrison county at his second trial a continuance should have been granted Jett. The latter accepted his life imprisonment sentence for the murder of Marcum, and is now in the penitentiary. Caleb Powers was also granted a new trial.

History's Lesson Lost Upon Russian Nobility

By Rev. NEWELL DWIGHT HILLIS of Brooklyn

RUSSIA has neglected the lesson of freedom so eloquently taught by history.

A new statement of OUR lesson is to be found in connection with that great empire of Europe which now is disturbed with the preliminary tremblings of A SOCIAL EARTHQUAKE. Three hundred years ago the conditions which prevail in Russia today could be found in England.

Later, in France, a noble, when the poor people of Paris asked for bread, said, "Let them eat grass," AND THE NEXT DAY THEY BUTCHERED HIM IN THE STREETS.

TODAY WE FIND IN RUSSIA A NATION WHERE THE LIVES OF THE LOWER CLASSES ARE FILLED WITH MISERY AND SQUALOR.

In the warm, rich atmosphere of the twentieth century these conditions exist. One part of society arrayed against the lower classes is saying, "We will be blind to the teachings of history," and is ignoring the INEVITABLE CONSEQUENCES which follow the enslaving of human souls and bodies. A little handful of men own all the land, possess all the titles, hold all the privileges. This is a country of which it can be truly said, "THE LESSONS OF HISTORY HAVE BEEN IN VAIN." But perhaps even now that lesson is upon them.

Success Depends Upon Character

By M. LINN BRUCE, Lieutenant Governor New York State

YOUNG men, your opportunities for success depend on your character. I care not what your education, wealth or social position may be—ALL DEPENDS ON YOUR CHARACTER. Is there a movement for better government, you do not have to guess where the man of character stands. You must have religious convictions. You cannot have convictions as to government or politics without having convictions regarding God, THE AUTHOR OF ALL GOVERNMENT.

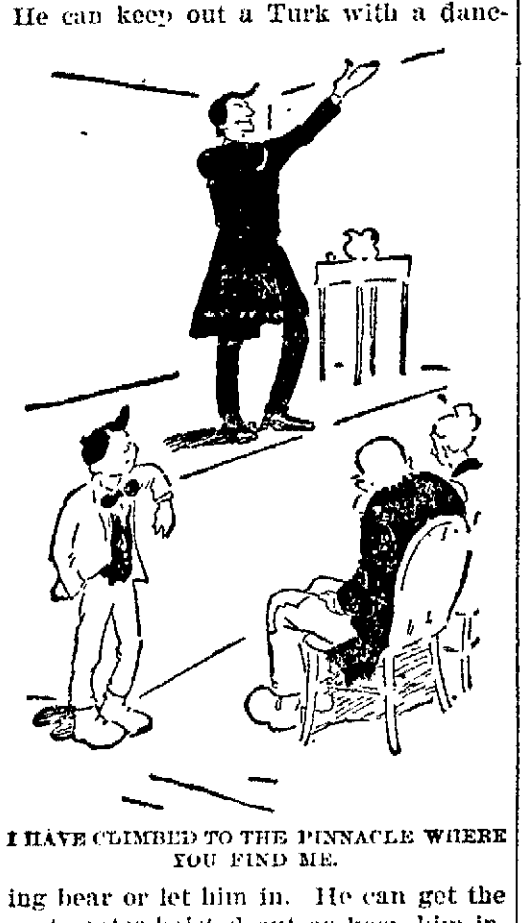

The Lecturer

"Hang on to a Good Thing" is the Subject of His Remarks—Cites Many Cases Where People Have Gone Too Far.

LADIES and Gentlemen—I had it all arranged with the man who owns the sawmill in this picturesque and enterprising burg to introduce me from the platform and save embarrassment, but at the last moment his wife stepped on a red-hot stove with her bare foot and he had to remain at home to extend his sympathy and pour on sweet oil. I will therefore introduce myself as Q. Hope Jones, one of the greatest men of our times and the most popular lecturer on the platform, and announce my subject as "Hang on to a Good Thing."

I reached this town last night after a tramp of twenty-two miles to sleep in a barn and to eat a mighty slim breakfast and dinner. I have, in brief, been treated like an impostor and been made to feel the bitterness of suspicion. Some great men would have turned away in anger, but one of my specialties is rising to the occasion, and I hereby rise. The admissions at the door only foot up 30 cents, and I may possibly get 20 more in the collection, but true genius is never discouraged, and 50 cents will take me on to my next date.

I have lectured on perseverance and ambition and have highly commended both attributes, but I have never gone too far. There is such a thing as knowing when and where to stop. That time comes when a man has a good thing. It is not given that any man shall climb higher than a certain point without coming down again with a kerflop. The idea with us all should be to climb, but to stop short at the danger point. Take the case of the sawmill man in your midst, for instance. He owns half the town and has got a mortgage on the other half. He can keep out a Turk with a dance ing bear or let him in. He can get the postmaster hoisted out or keep him in. He is boss, and even the price of shingle nails goes up or down as he raises or lowers his finger. He has got a good thing, and he should be satisfied. Let him get a hankering to go to the legislature, and he'll get a fall that will break his back inside of a month. He might possibly climb up to lead a Fourth of July procession or become president of a debating society, but he should beware of the limit.

I want to call your attention to Lucretia Borgia. She was one of the well known Borgia family, standing way up in G and looking down on common folks as we look down on a dog. She wasn't satisfied with being great and rich, however. She wanted to be greater. She wanted to run Rome and most of the rest of the world to suit herself. There were people in the way, and she began to poison them off. She dosed 'em right and left for two or three years, but finally tried it once too often and got left. It was right for her to have ambition, but she ought to have known when she had a good thing and stopped there and hung on.

Take the case of Bozzaris, the Greek. You have read in schoolbooks of how he cheered his band. He was a born fighter and was under arms at fifteen. Before he was thirty he was a general. He licked the Turks time and again and got back all the territory they had ever wrested from Greece, and for a time he was as big a man as the king. He ought to have been satisfied with that and bought a little farm and gone to raising radishes and chickens. He had done enough, and to climb higher was to invite a fall. Up he went, however, not satisfied with a good thing and a big thing, and the result was his death in the next battle he fought.

Let us glance for a moment at the career of Napoleon. There was a man exactly like Q. Hope Jones—bound to rise. He had it under his hat to do so, and a ton of bricks couldn't have kept him down. He didn't amount Towboat's Narrow Escape.

Wheeling, W. Va., March 27. — The towboat Clyde figured in a serious accident at Benwood, and narrowly escaped destruction. She was upbound with empties, when a steam pipe burst and the steamer and tow of eight barges became unmanageable and swung helplessly broadside down stream toward the Baltimore and Ohio bridge. The ferryboat Charon came to the Clyde's assistance, and after a hard struggle the steamer and tow were brought to the West Virginia shore, with one barge in a sinking condition.

DEEP CUT

In the prices on the entire stock that is left at the Smith & Nixon Co.'s special sale that is going on at No. 542 Main street, Carlton building, Coshocton, Ohio.

Save all middle profits by buying direct from the manufacturer.

Sale is for a short time only

So you will have to hurry if you want one of these fine pianos, for they are going fast. Several prominent people who have been drummed by agents have come in and seen the fine stock of selected high grade pianos, got the special price and bought right on the spot. Come in and do likewise if you want a fine piano at about the same price that you would have to pay a dealer for a cheap piano.

Remember This Sale is for a few days only

If agents call on you and try to keep you away from this cut price sale, pay no attention to them, for they are not in a position to compete with us in quality or price. Therefore, it is to their advantage that you stay away, hoping that at some future time to be able to sell a piano and make from $75 to $100 off of you. We are manufacturers of nothing but high grade pianos, and at this time you have a chance to buy a fine piano at a wholesale price.

OPEN EVENINGS.

We have taken in exchange two organs. Good as new. Will be sold very cheap.

We invite all musicians and expert tuners to call. Our pianos will stand the test. Call or write.

Sarto Club.

The Sarto club is progressing rapidly in its study of the church catechism. Work on it was continued at the meeting held with Miss Sophie Brice on Sunday evening and will be resumed at the meeting held with Mrs. Truman Waltz in a fort-

Family Gathering.

An event of unusual interest on Sunday was the family gathering at the home of Mrs. W. H. Robinson on Chestnut street. It was arranged in honor of Mrs. Robinson's birthday by her daughter Mrs. Dawson and the crowning event of all was the sumptuous dinner served at noon.
About the festive board covers were laid for Mrs. Robinson's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. William A.
Johnson, Mrs. W. H. Robinson, sr.,
Mr. and Mrs. Dawson and children and the hostess.

Home Missionary Society Market.

The big front window of the Central grocery resembled a delicatessen store on Saturday afternoon when the ladies of the first division of the Woman's Home Missionary society of Grace church held their weekly market. The things on sale were delicious and the success augurs well for the ultimate success of the venture. The ladies made something over $8. Next Saturday the market will be in charge of the ladies of the second division of the society.

Birthday Celebrated.

Fred Compton celebrated his eighteenth birthday on Saturday and the auspicious event was made the occasion of a surprise arranged for his pleasure by his mother. The unsuspecting host was enticed out for a time and when he returned home he found a number of his friends already there. They spent a jolly evening topping it all off with a delicious supper.

The occasion was enjoyed by S. J.
Ayres, John Agnew, James Swihart, Homer Swihart, William Judd, Roy Kirk, Charles Ransom, Floyd Adams, William Lynde, Ned Carr, Malcolm Baker, Walter Darling, Lee Williams, James Johnston, Carl Stewart,
Shaffer Stewart and Rob McCabe.

Christian Endeavor.

The Christian Endeavor society of the M. P. church will have a social on Thursday evening at the home of Wilbur Barton on North Fifth street.

Dance Wednesday Evening.

The Shepler-Newton orchestra will give its regular dance on Wednesday evening.

Swell Dance Tonight.

What promises to be the most pleasant society hop since the holidays will be given in honor of Miss Alice Hadden, of Cleveland, in Forbes' hall this evening. The Shepler-Newton orchestra has taken especial pains to furnish good music and will play from 8:30 o'clock until 12. About twenty-five couples will enjoy the occasion.

Rathbone Sisters' Social.

The Rathbone Sisters will give a social at the K of P. hall Tuesday evening. They have a number of special attractions arranged for the event. All the Rathbone Sisters and their families are invited to be present.

Eastern Stars Meet.

An important meeting of the Eastern Stars will be held at the Masonic hall Tuesday evening and all the members are urged to be present. Several candidates will be introduced into the order.

Dance a Success.

The dance which the City Harp orchestra gave on Saturday evening at Forbes' hall was largely attended.
The dance music the orchestra plays is excellent and one number was encored seven times. Another dance under the same auspices will be given next Saturday evening.

Epworth League.

The Epworth League of Grace church will give a social Tuesday evening in the Sunday school room of the church. A program will be given by Miss Bucklew, Miss Berry and Mr. Thomas and refreshments will be served. No admission will be charged but a collection will be taken.

Governor's Son Engaged.

St. Louis, March 27.—Miss Agnes well, president of the Blackwell-Wieland Book and Stationery company, a popular young society girl, departed in the private car of Governor Myron T. Herrick of Ohio to spend a few weeks with the governor's party touring the south. It is expected by Miss Blackwell's friends that her engagement to P. W. Herrick, the governor's son, will be announced in the near future. The party will go over the irrigated portion of Texas, as Governor Herrick has never explored that section of the state.

MADE A HIT AT CINCINNATI

Enquirer Man Lauds York State Folks to The Skies.

The Cincinnati Enquirer had the following words of praise Sunday for "York State Folks" which plays at the Sixth Street theatre next Thursday evening:

"York State Folks" which enjoyed its third prosperous engagement at the Walnut last week, is another illustration of the potency of American-made plays founded upon character types that are as refreshing as the surrounding country in which these homely plays are located.
They get so close to nature that they establish a kinship with good feeling and honest appreciation. Of these "York State Folks" is one of the best, and while it belongs in the class of American pastorals it is really unique in conception and development. There is something unstrained about the plot, and the telling of this simple story of village life that tends to it a longer life than is the share of most modern dramas.

Another thing about the play is that while it is not mounted for a starring vehicle it possesses some clean-cut and admirable types that might be looked upon as star roles.
James Lackaye, who has been in the cast since the piece was produced, has made Simon Peter, Martin, the domineering old political leader of the village, a character study that is worthy a place among the best sketched things of the sort of the present decade. Ray L. Boyce as the marked opposite to this role, the nonbelligerent old organ builder, Myron Cooper, in a quieter strain predominates the entire story and enacts the role with feeling. The other characters are striking in their mirror-like reflection of rustic people, but they call for an individual sense of humor and appropriateness that is exacting and in the entirely satisfactory manner of the performance lies one of its chief charms and claim to long life.

GET BUSY.

A problem which originated in Newcomerstown is now puzzling the fertile brains of Coshocton's youth. It is said that no matter what answer
you get, a Newcomerstown man can show you wherein you are wrong and he is right.
The problem is as follows:
Suppose Isleta is four miles west of Newcomerstown. A westbound train is coming through Newcomerstown. A brakeman climbs on the caboose at Newcomerstown and walks toward the head of the train. He steps off the engine just as it pulls into Isleta.
How far did he walk and how far did he ride?

Missing Boy Returns.

Chicago, March 27.—Frank Rogers, who disappeared from his home in Evanston four years ago with his aunt,
Miss Florence Ely, has returned.
Young Rogers stated that since leaving Chicago he has been working in Buffalo and New York city. The police and others for a long time worked on the case as a kidnapping mystery.
The boy now denies that he has been with his aunt. When he disappeared from his home in July, 1901, his aunt, Miss Ely, who had lived at the home of Young Rogers' parents, also disappeared, since when no trace of the boy or the woman had been found.

Care For Their Feet

Miss Fanton Prescribes Sensible Methods For "Milady."

TIGHT SHOES TABOOED

BY MARY ANNABLE FANTON

The woman with tired feet is trying to succeed in life with crippled machinery. There is very little joy for her either in industry or amusement. She is, as it were, always handicapped by her feet.

No matter how enthusiastically she starts the day, she is tired in a mile like Shakespeare's "sad heart."

And in nine cases out of ten it isn't tight shoes. It is often the wrong sort of shoes or badly made shoes or shoes that twist in the wearing, but American women as a rule, no longer pinch their feet. They seem to have come to realize that the pretty feet must be in harmony with the figure.

Tired feet when not the result of the wrong shoe are generally a proof that they need some sort of attention not just resting but treatment and fortunately the sort of treatment every woman can give herself without expense for doctor's calls or remedies.

The most important treatment for feet that ache with the day half over that swell and burn is the cold water cure. Every morning regularly, winter and summer, cold water, as cold as it will run from faucet or pump, should be poured over the feet. Don't stand in it but dash the cold water over one foot at a time for a couple of minutes and then rub dry vigorously with a rough towel.

This will leave the feet in a glow on the coldest days and is the best remedy in the world for poor circulation. It will relieve chronic swelling and is an admirable preventative for corns and bunions.

There are, however, feet that require more radical attention than this, but any other treatment should be in addition to this not in place of it.

When feet are blistered or calloused from standing, the ankles chapped from exposure and the nails brittle from cold they should be treated to daily miniature Turkish baths.

Every evening before going to bed they should be bathed in very warm borax water—a pint of borax to a quart of water—and allowed to rest in it for say five minutes, then cold with the hardest rubbing.

When dry they should be manicured at once, the nails cut square and water dashed over them, and dried moderately short, the skin pressed back with a bit of celluloid or orange stick.

And then as a final comfort the entire foot massaged with oil or cold cream, and done thoroughly so that the corns or callouses are softened, the rough skin smoothed and the nails rendered malleable.

After a treatment of this sort the feet will be normally cool, without any swelling or pain, and in a fair way to contribute to a peaceful night's sleep.

To get the best results from this care of the feet, they should be bathed always in soft water. Hard water leaves the skin rough, does not loosen the callous and intensifies any burning or irritation.

Where it is difficult to get rain water, add half a teaspoon of pure borax to a basin of warm water—for all foot baths—and a fine velvety smoothness will at once be perceptible to the sensitive skin.

An excellent emollient for the skin is also prepared with this healthful and soothing ingredient.

COLD CREAM—One ounce of spermaceti, one ounce of white wax, five ounces of best imported oil of sweet almonds, one and one half

COSHOCTON STUDENTS WON HONORS AT MASSILLON

Miss Exa Yocum and Mr. C. E. Miller, who are at the head of the Yocum Business College in Coshocton, are feeling well pleased over the showing made by their pupils at the competitive examination held in Massillon on Saturday. The first prize in bookkeeping was won by H. B. Marsh, of Bakersville, the third in shorthand by Miss Zella Lewis of Bakersville and the third in penmanship by Mr. Marsh. John Wegner, Miss Verna Leavengood and Miss Dora Cohen received much commendation for their work although they were not among the prize winners.

These contests are annual features in the Yocum schools and the contestants come from the seven schools which are under the Yocum management.

The school in Coshocton is doing well and it is stated that their graduate pupils and several who have not yet completed the full course have been supplied with excellent positions.

ounces of rosewater; twenty grains of powdered borax.

Dissolve the borax in the rosewater and, if the weather is cold, set the bottle in a pan of moderately warm water, melt wax and spermaceti, add almond oil and heat slightly; remove from the fire and pour into rosewater quickly; beat to a foam with an egg beater. When partly solid add two drops of oil of rose. Cease beating before the mass is firm, and pour into little porcelain jars which should be kept in a cool place.

This cream should be used in small quantities and thoroughly rubbed in. It is so simple that every woman can make it for herself at a very slight cost, yet is invaluable in the care of sensitive feet.

The best shoe for the woman who stands much is full long loose over the joint and snug fitting over the instep, this enables a foot to spread out to do its work, and at the same time prevent a shoe from slipping forward and rubbing the heel.

High heels are criminal for the busy woman, and a disadvantage to the grace and health of any woman. Fortunately they are only fashionable or dress shippers so that they can only injure a few women a part of the time instead of most of the women all of the time, as they used to when in vogue a decade ago.

The American girl will only flirt with absurdity nowadays. She will not take time to hear nowadays.

army was composed of the Samurais, professional fighting men. The modern army was drafted from all classes, yet all our hopes have been fully realized by the work this army has done in actual war.

Mukden prisoners have arrived here en route to the Narashimo barracks. They were transferred at the Omori station, avoiding the city. There were no crowds and consequently there was no demonstration. The prisoners are poorly clad. The Business Men's association is arranging for a monster celebration of the capture of Mukden for April 3, the anniversary of the accession of Emperor Jimmu Tenno, 660 B. C. It is planned to have a parade of 100,000 from Hibiya park to Ueno park, stopping at the palace to cheer the emperor. The exercises will be held in Ueno park.

Discuss Peace Terms.

Paris, March 27.—It was stated in diplomatic quarters here that among the conditions of peace which Japan might ask would be that Russia give a pledge to build no more warships for a term of years. A diplomatic official said that such a condition would be the most effective means of assuring Japan against Russia's carrying out her cherished project of naval re-

Cured of Backache.

Member of the Business Men's League and one of the best known business men in St. Louis, Mo. Read what Mr. Wand has to say about Dr. Fenner's Kidney and Backache Cure:

"I know what it is to be afflicted with backache and I sympathize with fellow sufferers. After swallowing various and frequent nauseating doses of this and that prescription I decided that if Dr. Fenner's Kidney and Backache Cure could not rid me of those backaches it at least would not do me any harm and I procured a bottle."

"Now the first bottle didn't stop those wearing backaches, but it did afford me great relief. The second bottle, however, did effectually put a stop to those racking backaches. Occasionally they returned when strenuous business affairs exhausted the physical forces, but a dose or two of Dr. Fenner's Cure gave instant relief."

Try The Age Want Columns OLD HOME WEEK TO BE A GALA ONE

Cut out the announcement below and send it to some friend who formerly resided in this county.

OLD-HOME WEEK COSHOCTON, OHIO, August 7 to 12, 1905.

The purpose is for all former Coshocton residents to visit the old home the same week. It will be a glad home-coming for all, because all the old friends will be there too.

The sons and daughters of the old town and county who have emigrated to the various quarters of the earth are invited and expected back to their native heath during Old-Home Week. The fires of youth and fond friendships will be rekindled and old hearts made young again. It will be a season of gladness, festivity and joy. It will outlive the days of Auld Lang Syne. Remember the date and visit the old home during that week. Send your name and address to the president or secretary of the Old-Home Week society, and full information will be sent you from time to time.

George S. Caton, Secretary.

Send this to some friend who formerly resided in Coshocton or Coshocton county. Let it be re-mailed from one to another and keep going as an epidemic chain, and they'll all come.

Nine Nations

Now Use Liquezone. Won't You Try It—Free?

Millions of people, of nine different nations, are constant users of Liquezone. Some are using it to get well; some to keep well. Some to cure germ diseases; some as a tonic. No medicine was ever so widely employed. These users are everywhere; your neighbors and friends are among them. And half the people you meet—wherever you are—know some-one whom Liquezone has cured.

If you need help, please ask some of these users what Liquezone does. Don't blindly take medicine for what medicine cannot do. Drugs never kill germs. For your own sake, ask about Liquezone; then let us buy you a full-size bottle to try.

We Paid $100,000

For the American rights to Liquezone. We did this after testing the product for two years, through physicians and hospitals, after proving, in thousands of different cases, that Liquezone destroys the cause of any germ disease.

Liquezone has, for more than 20 years, been the constant subject of scientific and chemical research. It is not made by compounding drugs, nor with alcohol. Its virtues are derived from one—largely oxygen gas—by a process resembling lightning, and it is pure. The result is a germicide that kills germs dead. It is not a poison, and it does not—most helpful thing in the world to you. Its effects are exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying. Yet it is a germicide so certain that we publish on every bottle an offer of $1,000 for a disease germ that it cannot kill. The reason is that germs are vegetables; and Liquezone—like an excess of oxygen—is deadly to vegetable matter.

There lies the great value of Liquezone. It is the only way known to kill germs in the body without killing the tissue, too. Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. Every physician knows that medicine is almost helpless in any germ disease.

Germ Diseases.

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquezone attacks the germs, wherever they are. And when the germs which cause a disease are destroyed, the disease must end, and forever. That is inevitable.

Author—Anemia, Debility, Indigestion, Nervousness, Prostration, Rheumatism, Skin Diseases, Stomach Troubles, Urinary Disorders, Women's Diseases, and all germ diseases. Liquezone is the only remedy that kills germs dead. It is not a poison, and it does not—Fever—Gall Stones, Gout—Joint Diseases, Gonorrhea—Gleets, Tumors—Uterus, Prostate, Testicles, Women's Diseases. All diseases that begin with fever—all inflammation—all catarrhs—all contagious diseases—all the results of impure or poisoned blood. In serious debility Liquezone acts as a vitalizer accomplishing what no drugs can do.

50c. Bottle Free.

If you need Liquezone, and have never tried it, please send us this coupon. We will then mail you an order on a local druggist for a full-size bottle, and we will pay the druggist ourselves for it. This is our free gift, made to convince you; to show you what Liquezone is, and what it can do. In justice to yourself, please, accept it to-day, for it places you under no obligation whatever. Liquezone costs 50c. and $1.

CUT OUT THIS COUPON for this offer and send it to the Liquezone Company, 484-484 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

My disease is..... I have never tried Liquezone, but if you will supply me a 50c. bottle free I will take it.

Name..... Address..... City..... State.....

COMFORT AND CONVENIENCE

Combined With Safety in Travel Over The Pennsylvania Lines.

The present passenger schedule of the Pennsylvania railroad, as usual makes provision for the comfort and convenience of its travelers to the minutest detail. For example, the fast train No. 29, which is not scheduled to stop at Coshocton, is within easy access of passengers from this place, who can leave Coshocton on No. 3 at 4:27 p. m. going to Timway and waiting there 35 minutes for train No. 29, taking sleeper for St. Louis, arriving there at 7:46 next morning.

Returning passengers may take sleeper on train No. 28, leaving St. Louis at 8:15 p. m. and arrive in Coshocton at 10:32 next morning. With through sleepers both ways and the finest dining car service on earth, the traveler has convenience, comfort and luxury all at his command, with no additional cost when the saving of time is taken into account.

This is only one of many examples of the convenience afforded by the schedules of the Pennsylvania, which are arranged with unequalled care and regard for the public accommodation.

When it is remembered too that with its fine roadbed and well organized train service the Pennsylvania has the fewest casualties in proportion to number of passengers carried of any railroad on earth, it is not surprising that experienced travelers always prefer to go via this line. The result is the great procession of passenger trains that go over this line every day and night in the year.

In addition to its many conveniences, the traveler always feels perfectly safe on the Pennsylvania.

Will have a fresh lot of lake and river fish at public market.

EXPLAINS HIS CONNECTION WITH ODD FELLOWS

The Age is in receipt of the following communication from R. C. Kinkead, of Greenfield, relative to his membership in the I. O. O. F. lodge of Coshocton:

"Greenfield, O., March 25, 1905.
"Editor of The Age.
"The Age came to hand this morning, I see you have copied the article from the Ohio State Journal as to my connection with the institution of the I. O. O. F. lodge No. 44 at Coshocton.

"I notice quite an error in the statement, that is not according to the facts in the case: namely, that I was a charter member of the lodge. I could not have been a charter member, because I was initiated as a member after the lodge was instituted. In my statement to Brother Parker, I said that I was the second one in it.

"It may be possible, that, there is no member of No. 44 now living who knows how, or by whom, the charter members were. Their names may be learned by writing I. O. O. F. lodge at Mt. Vernon. Five members of a lodge in Mt. Vernon for the purpose of starting a lodge in Coshocton, were granted withdrawal cards. They and Past Grand Master Thomas L. Spooner of Cincinnati came in a carriage to Coshocton, August 26, 1845 and instituted No. 44.

"Mr. Loyal Bigelow, druggist, was the first one initiated and I believe I was the second. Next Tuesday the 28th, if I reach it, I will be eighty-six years and three months of age.

Respectfully yours
"R. C. Kinkead."
